

Securitas to Showcase Intelligence-Led Security and Operational Excellence at GSX 2026

Securitas Usa will bring together risk intelligence, connected security capabilities and industry expertise, alongside a featured GSX session

PARSIPPANY, NJ, UNITED STATES, August 27, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Securitas, a global leader in intelligent security solutions, will showcase its approach to intelligence-led security and operational excellence at GSX 2026, September 14–16 in Atlanta.

At Booth 1905, Securitas will connect attendees with leaders and subject-matter experts to discuss the security challenges facing their organizations and industries. Visitors can book one-on-one meetings with the Securitas team and explore how the company combines risk intelligence, technology, and human expertise to strengthen security operations.

The booth experience will include complimentary personalized risk intelligence reports that provide attendees with an assessment of risks relevant to their organization, as well as complimentary access to Securitas Risk Intelligence experts to discuss the trends shaping the security landscape. Attendees will also get an early look at Securitas' operational excellence platforms and experience demonstrations of its connected ecosystem, including client and workforce platforms, as well as new capabilities supporting security officers and field teams.

Securitas will also highlight its continued investment in its people, including enhanced officer benefits through the SecureU Education Benefit program powered by Guild and newly released ASIS-accredited training and development programs. Attendees who visit Booth 1905 can enter for a chance to win a pair of Ray-Ban Meta Smart Glasses.

As part of the GSX education program, Sophie Cairney, Lead Risk Intelligence Consultant at Securitas Group, will present “From Signal to Action: Operationalizing Intelligence in Corporate Security” on September 15, 2026, at 2:45 pm in Room B311. Cairney specializes in geopolitical risk and strategic intelligence, with a focus on translating global threat analysis into practical security insights. Her session will address a growing challenge for corporate security leaders: making sense of a constant flow of global risk information and determining what requires action.

Securitas Usa focus is on helping clients turn insight into action and build security operations that are prepared for what comes next.

Members of the media attending GSX can schedule interviews with Securitas leaders and experts on risk intelligence, geopolitical risk, data center security, operational excellence, workforce development, and connected security solutions.
