Professional Race Car Driver, Entrepreneur and GothamIP Founder Takes on New Role as Youth Basketball Coach

From the racetrack to the basketball court, entrepreneur, professional race car driver racing Ferrari's and business executive Yousuf Nabi is taking on a new challenge this season as a coach with NJB Basketball – Chino Valley.

Nabi's career has been built around competition, leadership and entrepreneurship. As the founder and CEO of GothamIP, he has developed and managed a diversified portfolio of companies spanning multiple industries, including food and beverage, franchised retail, professional services and other business ventures.

At the same time, Nabi has help build Gotham Motorsports into a professional racing organization, competing in Ferrari's and other professional motorsports programs across the United States.

Now, Nabi is bringing the lessons learned from the racetrack and the business world to the basketball court.

From Racing Ferraris to Building Businesses

The transition from racing to coaching may appear to be an unexpected one, but Nabi sees a strong connection between all three of his worlds: motorsports, business and athletics.

Whether preparing a Ferrari for a professional race, building a company, or developing a young basketball player, Nabi believes success is driven by the same core principles: Discipline. Preparation. Teamwork. Focus. Accountability. Perseverance.

“Whether you're building a business, preparing a race car, or stepping onto the basketball court, the fundamentals are the same,” said Nabi. “You have to prepare, trust your team, stay focused, learn from your mistakes and always look for ways to get better.”

Through GothamIP, Nabi has spent years building and managing businesses and teams, creating opportunities for employees and developing companies across multiple markets. That experience has reinforced his belief that leadership is not simply about being in charge—it is about developing people, building strong teams and helping others reach their potential.

Bringing Business and Racing Lessons to Young Athletes

As a Chino Valley NJB coach, Nabi's focus will extend beyond basketball fundamentals. He plans to emphasize teamwork, sportsmanship, discipline, responsibility and personal development while encouraging his players to compete at their highest level and, most importantly, enjoy the game.

“I’m excited for the season ahead and for the opportunity to work with these young athletes,” Nabi said. “We’re going to compete, we’re going to learn, and we’re going to have fun. My goal is to help every player become a better basketball player, teammate and leader.”

For Nabi, coaching represents an opportunity to give back and share experiences gained through years of entrepreneurship, business leadership and professional motorsports.

A Career Built on Leadership

Nabi's professional journey includes building GothamIP and its family of companies, while simultaneously developing Gotham Motorsports as a competitive professional racing organization.

His businesses have operated across multiple states and industries, requiring the same qualities he now hopes to instill in his young athletes: preparation, communication, accountability and the ability to work together toward a common goal.

The 2026 basketball season adds another dimension to Nabi's career—bringing his experience as a business builder, team owner, professional race car driver and entrepreneur to the next generation of athletes.
