

Buenafe Clinic Brings Next-Generation ApexRF Radiofrequency ED Treatment to Winnipeg

New non-invasive therapy expands non-surgical options for Manitoba men seeking an alternative approach to erectile dysfunction.

WINNIPEG, MB, CANADA, September 1, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Buenafe Clinic has introduced ApexRF, a non-invasive radiofrequency treatment for erectile dysfunction (ED), at its Winnipeg men's health clinic.

ApexRF uses controlled radiofrequency energy to support tissue remodeling and blood circulation. The in-office procedure is performed without medication or surgery and does not require downtime. Each session takes 15 to 20 minutes, with a typical treatment plan spanning several weeks.

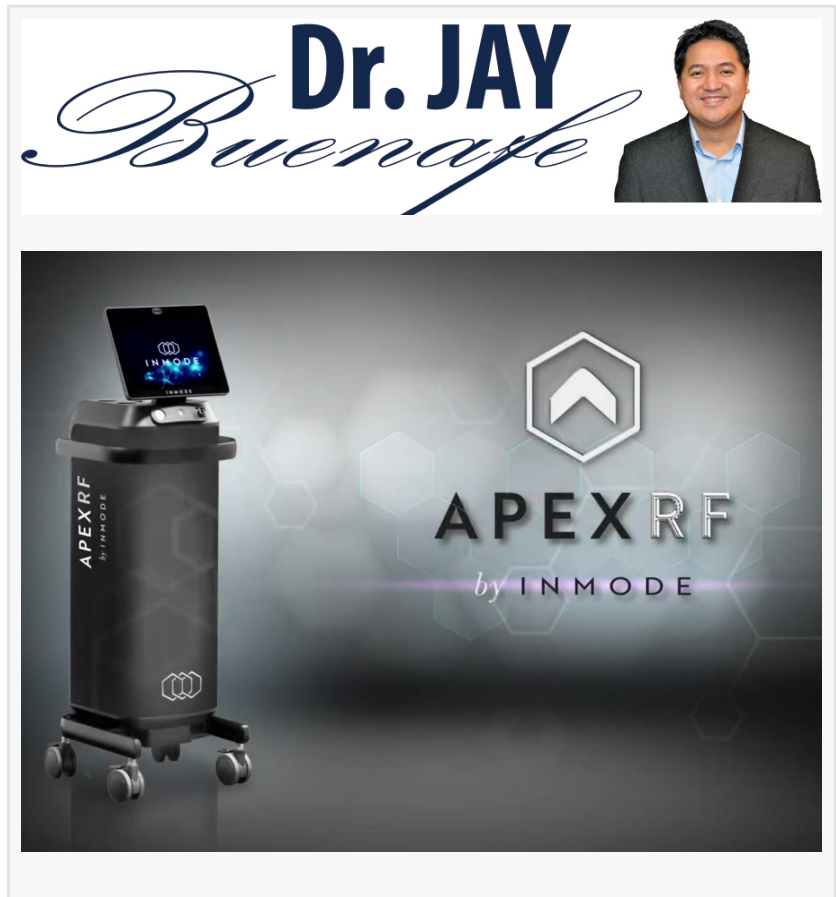

"Erectile dysfunction does not affect every man for the same reasons, and there is no single treatment that works for everyone," said Dr. Jay Buenafe, founder of Buenafe Clinic. "ApexRF gives our team another non-invasive option to discuss with patients as part of a broader treatment plan."

Erectile dysfunction does not affect every man for the same reasons, and there is no single treatment that works for everyone.”

Dr. Jay Buenafe

Research into radiofrequency-based approaches for erectile dysfunction is ongoing, with studies examining potential effects on erectile function and treatment safety. At Buenafe Clinic, ApexRF is offered alongside other ED treatment options, including shockwave and injection therapies.

Suitability for ApexRF is evaluated through individual medical consultations. More information about ApexRF and erectile dysfunction treatment options is available at BuenafeClinic.com.
