David Bonnstetter

“This recognition is especially meaningful because it comes directly from our employees,” said David Bonnstetter, President at TTI Success Insights. “At TTI, we’ve always believed that helping organizations build better workplaces starts with building one ourselves. Being recognized as a Top Workplace reflects the culture we’ve created together.”

For the 2026 awards, 4,889 Arizona organizations were invited to participate in the survey, and 165 earned recognition as Arizona Top Workplaces based on employee feedback.

Energage analyzes feedback using benchmarks developed from more than 30 million employee surveys collected over the past 20 years, making the award one of the nation's most credible measures of workplace culture.

"Earning a Top Workplaces award is a celebration of excellence," said Eric Rubino, CEO of Energage, in the announcement on azcentral.com. "It serves as a reminder of the vital role a people-first workplace experience plays in achieving success."
