Embroidered Patches IE specializes in the creation of personalized embroidered patches according to the specifications of the client. “Custom patches are the simple and highly visible way of expressing identity for businesses and organizations,” said a representative of Embroidered Patches IE. “Our goal is to simplify the customisation process and help our clients to create patches which suit the brand, project, event, or community of the client.”

Helping Businesses With Custom Branding

Embroidered Patches IE sees itself as a custom patch producer for organizations that need an alternative for traditional printed branding. Embroidery adds texture to the garment making it suitable for various professional and promotional uses.

Organizations can use personalized patches for staff apparel, uniforms, work jackets, promotional apparel, hospitality apparel, retail projects, and corporate events. Clubs and community organizations can use patches to unify the visual identity of their members' clothing and accessories.

The approach which the company uses puts client-specific design ahead of ready-made one. The customer is allowed to provide his own logos, graphics, lettering or ideas and thus make the final product to suit the application.

Quality and Personalization

Embroidered Patches IE focuses on quality, design clarity, and customer service in the process of customisation. The company aims to help the customers to find the right patch format and produce the product which would match the garment or accessory it is applied to.

The services provided by the company can be useful for organizations of all sizes starting from independent business and ending with larger organizations which need branded apparel for campaigns, teams or events.
