Gemone Diamond, the fine jewelry house known for its certified natural black diamonds, today announced the launch of its Custom Lab-Grown Diamond Wedding Rings Collection. The collection is live since this wedding season, and is giving couples around the world the ability to design fully personalized wedding rings using certified lab-grown diamonds choosing their own stone shape, setting style, metal, and engraving from a single online configurator.

We create wedding jewelry that captures the emotion of today and becomes part of every tomorrow”

Ashish Sukhdiya

A timeless symbol of love, captured in a moment made to last forever.

The launch responds to a clear shift in bridal buying: today's couples want a ring that is unmistakably theirs, without compromising on certification, quality, or transparency. Lab-grown diamonds chemically, physically, and optically identical to mined diamonds have made that combination of personalization and value possible at a scale not seen in fine jewelry before.

The Custom Lab-Grown Diamond Wedding Rings Collection is built around a step-by-step configurator that walks couples through every decision:

Diamond shape — round brilliant, oval, cushion, emerald, pear, and princess cuts

Diamond character — classic white diamonds or Gemone's signature certified black diamonds

Setting style — solitaire, halo, three-stone, and pavé-accented bands

Metal — platinum, 18K white gold, yellow gold, and rose gold

Finishing touches — ring sizing, personalized engraving, and matching band options for couples

Every diamond in the collection ships with independent lab-grown certification, and every custom order is backed by Gemone's existing quality assurance and after-sales care process. Couples can complete the entire design journey online, with the option of a one-on-one design consultation for larger or more intricate orders.

Pricing & Availability

The collection is priced from $500 , depending on diamond size, shape, and setting.

The collection ships to the United States, United Kingdom, European Union, Canada, Australia, and the United Arab Emirates, with select in-person consultations available by appointment. The full collection, is live now.
