Building Services Inc. is celebrating its

10th anniversary, marking a decade of growth from a locally founded Omaha company into a trusted commercial cleaning, post-construction cleaning and federal janitorial contractor.

Founded by Ramiro Gaitan in 2016, RTG today employs more than 115 trained professionals and maintains millions of square feet of facilities throughout the Omaha metro and beyond.

When I started this company, I set out to build something Omaha could count on”

Ramiro Gaitan

Gaitan, a Hispanic American entrepreneur with nearly a decade of industry experience before starting RTG, built the company with a focus on quality service, accountability and long-term customer relationships.

RTG has built a steady record with the federal government. Its work includes janitorial services for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Omaha District, specialized window washing at Offutt Air Force Base, and custodial support for the Transportation Security Administration at Eppley Airfield, along with multi-year contracts at General Services Administration sites in Nebraska, Iowa and Arizona.

As a certified 8(a) small business, RTG competes for federal set-aside contracts, supporting the company's expanding government portfolio.

"When I started this company, I set out to build something Omaha could count on," said Ramiro Gaitan, president of RTG Building Services. "Ten years later, more than 115 people earn a living here, and we have earned the trust of the federal government and businesses across the region. We are proud of the decade behind us and focused on the one ahead. RTG plans to keep hiring across the metro as it enters its second decade"
