

Esteem Apparel Adds Local Warehouses in Mexico, Canada, UK, EU and Australia for Men's Compression Shapewear

Men's Shapewear Compression Shirts now ship from within six regions, removing customs fees and long international delivery times for customers outside the USA.

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, August 27, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Esteem Apparel, a men's compression shapewear brand founded in 2016, today announced that its products now ship from local warehouses in Mexico, Canada, the United Kingdom, the European Union and Australia, in addition to its United States fulfillment.

Orders placed by customers in these regions are dispatched domestically, which means no customs duties, no import fees on delivery, and typical delivery in two to five business days.

Until now, men in the UK, Europe, Canada, Australia and Mexico searching for a gynecomastia compression shirt or men's slimming undershirt have often faced the same barrier: the products they found online shipped from another continent, with unpredictable import charges added at the door. The expansion removes that barrier for Esteem Apparel customers worldwide.

Delivery by region is now as follows. In the United States, shipping is free on every order, with delivery in approximately two to five business days. In the United Kingdom, orders ship from a UK warehouse with free shipping and no customs fees. In the European Union, orders ship from an EU warehouse for a low flat rate with no customs fees. In Canada, orders ship from a Canadian warehouse with free shipping and no customs fees. In Australia, orders ship locally with free shipping and no customs fees. In Mexico, orders ship from within Mexico for a low flat rate with no customs fees, and the Esteem Apparel website is available in Spanish.

"Most of our international customers are dealing with gynecomastia, and they have usually already tried a few products that did not work or that took three weeks and a customs bill to arrive," said James Roberts, founder of Esteem Apparel. "Shipping from inside their own country was the single most requested change we have had, and it is now live in every market we sell in."

Esteem Apparel has specialized in compression shapewear for men since 2016. Its best-known product, the Original Gynecomastia Compression Shirt, was designed specifically to flatten the chest for men with gynecomastia, also known as male breast enlargement or "man boobs," and remains the company's flagship. The brand now offers a range of men's shapewear for different needs: the Max Compression Slimming Tank for full-torso shaping, the EliteSlim slimming undershirt, the lightweight UltraSlim for everyday wear under dress shirts, and a Posture Base Layer that combines chest compression with upper-back support. Every product is available in black and white, in sizes from Medium to 3XL, and is cut for bigger and taller men rather than scaled up from a standard fit. Three-packs were introduced in July 2026 and already account for roughly half of the brand's US sales.

The company's approach differs from mainstream men's shapewear in one deliberate way: compression. Where most men's slimming undershirts prioritize a loose, comfortable fit, Esteem Apparel garments are engineered with firmer, targeted compression through the chest and midsection so they visibly flatten rather than simply smooth. The brand's sizing guidance is that the shirts run extremely tight by design, and it offers free size exchanges and free 30-day returns so customers can find the right fit without risk.

Esteem Apparel products have earned more than 14,000 customer reviews on Amazon, alongside verified reviews on the brand's own website, and the company has sold to customers in more than eight countries since 2016.

"Comfortable shapewear that does not actually change how a shirt fits is not worth wearing," said Roberts. "We built the company around men who wanted something that works, and the reviews reflect that. Local warehouses mean those same men in London, Toronto, Sydney, Berlin or Mexico City now get the product as quickly and simply as someone in Texas."

Esteem Apparel products are available at <https://esteem-compression-apparel.com> and on Amazon. The website automatically shows local currency and local shipping terms based on the visitor's country, and a Spanish-language version is available for Mexico and Spanish-speaking customers.

Esteem Apparel is a men's compression shapewear brand founded in 2016. The company designs compression shirts, slimming tanks and undershirts for men with gynecomastia and for general body shaping, with a focus on bigger and taller sizes. Its products now ship from local warehouses worldwide.
