

Morphed Launches Agent That Turns One Prompt Into a Complete Creative Campaign

Describe the campaign in plain language. Morphed plans and creates its images and videos in one workspace, with no production stack required.

HOUSTON, TX, UNITED STATES, August 28, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Morphed today launched Morphed Agent, a creative production agent that turns one plain-language prompt into a coordinated campaign across images and video. It is built for founders, ecommerce operators and marketers who need campaign creative but do not have an in-house production team or deep experience with AI tools.

A Morphed Agent session showing coordinated campaign images and videos created from one brief.

The user starts by describing the goal in ordinary words. They can attach a product photo, logo, brand reference or character when the campaign needs one. The Agent turns that direction into a production plan and creates the requested assets in one workspace. A single request can cover a website hero, social creative, ad images, short videos and campaign variations.

Most teams do not need another prompt box. They need the whole campaign to move forward. Morphed Agent turns one direction into the images and videos needed to launch.”

This is broader than generating one image or video from one prompt. The Agent carries the campaign through multiple production jobs while keeping the brief and references in the same session. Users can review each result, request changes, animate a still image or continue to the next asset without rebuilding the project in another tool.

"Most teams do not need another prompt box. They need the whole campaign to move forward," said Bilal Azhar, founder of Morphed. "Morphed Agent takes one direction and helps turn it into the images and videos the campaign needs. The customer does not have to manage every model and production step."

Morphed Agent draws on the image and video models available in the Morphed workspace. The catalog includes Z-Image Turbo, Nano Banana 2, GPT Image 2, Kling 2.6, Seedance 2.5 and MiniMax H3 Max. The Agent recommends a model for each job, while users can choose one themselves when they want direct control.

The same workflow can support creative for a product launch, social promotion, event or broader media campaign. In a launch-day production run, the team attached one headphone photo and asked for a set of campaign assets. The Agent generated two images and two short product videos in the same session, including a website hero, a lifestyle ad and video variations. Results and generation costs vary by brief and selected model.

Users remain in control of what runs. Before paid generation begins, the Agent shows the proposed job and expected credit cost. In approval mode, nothing runs until the user accepts it. Cost visibility is a safeguard inside the workflow, not the work the user has to manage.

Morphed Agent creates campaign images and videos. It does not buy media, choose audiences, change bids or targeting, or publish ads. People should review generated details before an asset represents a real product or brand.

Morphed Agent is available now in the Morphed web workspace. Full image and video generation through the Agent is available on paid plans starting at $9 per month. Generation uses plan credits. Media contacts can request product access or a walkthrough.

About Morphed

Morphed is a Houston-based creative workspace for generating, editing and composing image and video assets. It brings image and video models into one credit-based web product, with plans for individual creators, teams and studios.
