the AAIS Partner Program, expanding the resources available to AAIS Member carriers seeking to improve financial outcomes, reduce claim costs, and strengthen operational performance.

Latitude Subrogation Services provides specialized subrogation and recovery solutions for property and casualty (P&C) insurers and reinsurers. Through a combination of industry expertise and a recovery-focused approach, Latitude helps carriers and reinsurers identify recovery opportunities, manage claims efficiently, and maximize recoveries while supporting a seamless policyholder and client experience.

“AAIS is committed to connecting our Members with trusted solutions that help them operate more efficiently and achieve stronger business outcomes,” said Keith Wolfe, President and Chief Executive Officer of AAIS. “We are excited about the opportunity for our Members to benefit from Latitude's specialized subrogation recovery expertise and the value it can bring to their claims operations.”

As claims costs continue to rise, effective subrogation and recovery programs play an increasingly important role in helping insurers improve financial outcomes and operational efficiency. Through the AAIS Partner Program, Member carriers gain access to Latitude's services and expertise, helping them reduce loss costs, increase recoveries, and create operational efficiencies without adding internal burden. From individual recovery services to comprehensive outsourcing solutions, Latitude offers flexible support designed to complement existing claims operations and processes, helping carriers strengthen financial performance while creating a better experience for claims teams and policyholders alike.

“Partnering with AAIS gives Latitude an opportunity to bring our specialized subrogation recovery expertise to a broader community of P&C insurers and reinsurers,” said Sheila Dye, Chief Operating Officer of Latitude Subrogation Services. “We look forward to helping AAIS Member carriers and reinsurers identify more recovery opportunities, reduce loss costs, and strengthen claims performance through a focused, technology-enabled approach.”
