Muto Studio U.S. technology services, software development and AI automation

Organizations need technology partners that connect software engineering, customer experience, automation and business growth.”

Cristian Muñoz, CEO of Muto Studio

The expansion supports Muto Studio's continued international growth and builds on its experience delivering digital initiatives for organizations across Colombia, the United States, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Panama, Costa Rica and other international markets.

Muto Studio combines software engineering, UX/UI design, digital strategy and growth capabilities to help organizations build, improve and scale digital products and platforms.

Its technology services include custom software development, web development, eCommerce, systems integration, AI-powered customer experiences, conversational AI, workflow automation and business process automation.

"Organizations increasingly need technology partners that can connect engineering decisions with customer experience and business growth," said Cristian Muñoz, CEO of Muto Studio. "Our expansion in the U.S. market is focused on providing an integrated approach across software development, digital experiences and automation."

EXPANDING AN INTERNATIONAL TECHNOLOGY DELIVERY MODEL

Muto Studio has supported projects across industries including real estate, hospitality, healthcare, education, retail, manufacturing, fintech, government and technology.

Its work ranges from corporate websites and eCommerce platforms to custom business applications, integrations, digital platforms and broader digital transformation initiatives.

Rather than treating software development, design, artificial intelligence and digital growth as isolated disciplines, Muto Studio works across the lifecycle of digital initiatives, from strategy and UX/UI through engineering, deployment, integration and continuous improvement.

The company also collaborates with agencies and business partners through white-label technology and development models. These partnerships allow agencies to expand their software engineering, web development and digital production capabilities while Muto Studio operates as an extension of their existing teams.

GROWING AI AND AUTOMATION CAPABILITIES

Artificial intelligence and automation are becoming increasingly important components of Muto Studio's technology offering.

The company is expanding its work around AI-powered customer experiences, conversational solutions, workflow automation and integrations between digital platforms and business systems.

The objective is to help organizations identify practical applications of artificial intelligence that improve customer interactions, streamline business processes and connect operational data across their digital ecosystem.

Muto Studio sees the United States as a strategic market for continued international growth, particularly among organizations seeking flexible technology partners capable of supporting projects across software development, UX/UI, artificial intelligence, automation and digital growth.
