commercial real estate development firm with projects throughout the Western United States, today announced the appointment of Michael Marron as Chief Financial Officer, further strengthening the company's executive leadership team as it continues to expand its development pipeline and capitalize on new investment opportunities.

Marron joins LaPour Partners with decades of experience spanning real estate finance, capital strategy, investment management, and institutional asset management. Throughout his career, he has held leadership positions with some of the industry's most respected financial institutions, including KPMG, Bear Stearns, Lehman Brothers, Prudential, and Barings, where he helped oversee real estate portfolios exceeding $500 million as part of organizations managing more than $42 billion in assets under management.

As Chief Financial Officer, Marron will oversee the company's financial strategy, capital planning, investment analysis, and financial operations, helping position LaPour for continued growth while supporting its disciplined approach to creating long-term value for investors, partners, and communities.

“Mike's background combines institutional investment experience with a deep understanding of commercial real estate finance,” said Jeff LaPour, Founder and President of LaPour. “As we continue pursuing transformative development opportunities, his strategic financial leadership and capital markets expertise will be instrumental in helping us execute our long-term vision.”

Marron's career reflects a unique combination of public accounting, investment banking, institutional investment management, and entrepreneurial real estate leadership. He has extensive experience evaluating complex investments, structuring capital, managing portfolios, and supporting large-scale development initiatives.

"I've admired LaPour Partners' reputation for pursuing challenging, high-impact developments and creating lasting value through thoughtful execution," said Marron. "I'm excited to join a team with such a strong entrepreneurial culture and look forward to helping advance the firm's next phase of growth while strengthening its financial platform for the future."

Marron earned his Master of Business Administration from Columbia University and is a licensed Certified Public Accountant (CPA).

The appointment reflects LaPour Partners' continued investment in its leadership team as the company advances commercial real estate developments across Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, California, and other high-growth markets throughout the West.
