

Victory Recovery Partners to Open Licensed Hauppauge Treatment Center This Fall

The full-service center on Joshua's Path will bring substance use and mental health care to Suffolk County, with all insurances accepted, including Medicaid.

HAUPPAUGE, NY, UNITED STATES, August 31, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- HAUPPAUGE, N.Y., August 31, 2026 — Victory Recovery Partners will open a new outpatient treatment center in Hauppauge on September 9th, 2026, bringing licensed substance use and mental health care to central Suffolk County. The center, at 2170 Joshua's Path, joins a network of more than ten Victory locations across Long Island and New York City.

The Hauppauge addiction treatment center is being built to deliver full-service treatment under one roof — medical, psychiatric, and behavioral care in a single place, rather than a referral network a patient has to assemble on their own while trying to get well.

Licensed and Accredited Care

Victory operates OASAS-licensed programs throughout New York, and three of its existing centers — Farmingville, Hicksville, and Shirley — have earned The Joint Commission's Gold Seal of Approval. The Hauppauge location is being developed to those same clinical and operational standards.

For families comparing options, that distinction is worth understanding. Licensing and accreditation are not marketing language; they reflect outside review of how a facility documents care, manages medication, protects patient safety, and measures outcomes. In a field where quality varies widely between providers, they are among the few signals a family can verify independently.

Everything Under One Roof

The Hauppauge center will offer the same range of care available across Victory's network. Medication-assisted treatment will be delivered with counseling, psychiatric care, and peer support built into the treatment plan rather than offered as separate add-ons — an integrated model that reflects how substance use and mental health conditions actually present in the same person.

Behavioral health services will support patients at every stage, from those first considering treatment to those maintaining long-term recovery. Outpatient care will be available to adults and teens ages 11 and up, and scheduling will run morning, afternoon, and evening, so treatment fits around school, work, and family obligations instead of forcing a choice between them.

Removing the Delay Between Deciding and Starting

Readiness to enter treatment is often short-lived, and a waitlist can outlast it. Victory works to get patients into therapy within 24 hours of first contact — a standard that matters most in the narrow window when someone has finally decided to ask for help.

Cost is addressed the same way. Victory accepts all insurances, including Medicaid, and helps uninsured patients qualify for coverage or arrange self-pay rates. The organization's billing department works directly with patients to confirm benefits before treatment begins.

The Hauppauge center will operate under the philosophy that guides every Victory location: no one is left behind. In practice, that means accepting patients other providers might turn away — people with complex histories, prior discharges, or circumstances that make them difficult to place.

It is a straightforward commitment, and an uncommon one. Much of the treatment industry is structured to screen out complexity. Victory's stated position is the opposite: the patients hardest to serve are frequently the ones with nowhere else to go.

Location and Contact

The new Hauppauge center is located at 2170 Joshua's Path, Hauppauge, NY 11788, and will open in fall 2026. Hours of operation will be announced closer to the opening date.

Patients, families, and referring providers can call 631-528-1720 to ask about programs, verify insurance coverage, or be notified when the center begins accepting patients.
