Payments That Create Lasting Change

Surrogacy payments can create long-term opportunities when women use them toward individual and family goals. Miracle surrogates have purchased homes, established businesses, returned to school and invested in their children's education. The agency believes a journey's impact should be measured not only by the pregnancy, but also by the opportunities it creates afterward.

These outcomes demonstrate how financial support can extend beyond immediate household expenses. For some surrogates, the journey becomes an opportunity to improve housing security, acquire professional skills or establish an independent source of income. Each woman determines how to use her payments according to her priorities, circumstances and plans for the future.

Recognizing Surrogates as Mothers and Individuals

The Foundation organizes Mother's Day, Christmas and appreciation gatherings in Mexico City, Cancún and Mérida, allowing surrogates to celebrate and connect. It also provides school-supply packages containing backpacks, notebooks and classroom essentials for their children.

Foundation events complement this financial impact by creating community and recognition. They give surrogates opportunities to meet other women with similar experiences, strengthen support networks and celebrate their contributions alongside their children. This connection reinforces Miracle Surrogacy's commitment to caring for surrogates as individuals, mothers and family members.

How the Foundation Is Funded

The Miracle Surrogacy Foundation receives funding from the Yaden family, whose long-standing commitment to surrogacy includes supporting surrogates, helping intended parents build families and creating opportunities for others.

A dedicated team administers the funds and identifies personalized support for surrogates in Miracle Surrogacy's Mexico programs.

The Miracle Surrogacy Foundation is a registered Florida nonprofit. It is a private organization and is not registered with the Internal Revenue Service as a 501(c)(3); contributions are not tax-deductible.
