

Zenvoya's AI Trip Planner Connects Travelers to a Global Network of More Than 3.2 Million Hotels

Partnerships with leading distribution providers like WebBeds and Nuitee give Zenvoya travelers direct-contract access to 3.2M+ hotels at lower member rates.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, UNITED STATES,

September 1, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Zenvoya Inc., the AI-powered travel company that helps people plan, book, and manage entire trips through a single conversation, today detailed the global hotel supply network behind its platform. Through partnerships with six established hotel distribution providers, Zenvoya offers a combined inventory of more than 3.2 million properties worldwide, spanning every major hotel chain and a deep bench of boutique and independent hotels.

Travelers should not have to choose between selection, price, and a planning experience that actually helps them.”

*Vipul Doshi, Co-Founder,
Zenvoya*

That breadth is what lets Zenvoya surface genuinely lower prices. As a free, members-first marketplace with special supplier agreements that off-the-shelf booking sites do not have, Zenvoya shows members lower hotel rates than typical online travel agencies, with the biggest savings on luxury properties and off-season stays. There is no subscription and no fee to plan; travelers pay only for what they book.

Zenvoya works with several partners so that coverage reinforces rather than overlaps:

1. WebBeds, one of the largest hotel aggregators globally, provides broad worldwide coverage of chain and independent properties
2. Nuitee, with access to more than 2.9 million properties globally across all major chains. Nuitee recently raised a $48M Series A led by Accel
3. Hotel Trader, distribution technology that powers direct, performance-driven partnerships between hotels and travel buyers
4. G2 Travel, with a strong portfolio of direct contracts spanning Europe, the Middle East, Asia, and North America, including Accor and regional boutique properties
5. HotelDo, Despegar's wholesale brand, featuring 26,000+ direct contracts across Latin America

& the Caribbean

6. MG offers one of the largest hotel inventories in Southeast Asia, supported by a vast network of direct hotel contracts

Direct-contract relationships tend to mean better availability and more reliable pricing than reselling alone.

Access to inventory only helps if booking it is effortless, and that is where Zenvoya differs from a conventional booking site. Travelers describe the trip they want in plain language, and Zoya, Zenvoya's in-app AI companion, handles destination discovery, itinerary building, and booking flights, hotels, and experiences. Crucially, Zenvoya owns the booking relationship end to end: change dates, swap a hotel, or adjust an experience inside the same conversation, with proactive trip support if a flight is cancelled or an issue comes up mid-trip. Most travel tools hand travelers off to a third party the moment plans change; Zenvoya does not.

Travelers are responding, and the consumer app is evidence the stack holds up in production: more than 75% of registered users build a full itinerary and over 70% search for flights or hotels. The platform is available at zenvoya.ai and on the Apple App Store.

"Travelers should not have to choose between selection, price, and a planning experience that actually helps them," said Vipul Doshi, co-founder of Zenvoya. "Our supplier agreements let us pass real value back to members on the same hotels people are already booking elsewhere."

"AI is changing how people discover and book travel, making the experience much more conversational and intuitive. Zenvoya is building around that shift, and we're excited to power it with the global hotel supply and infrastructure needed to turn those conversations into real bookings at scale," said Gian Caprini, VP of Growth, Nuitee.
