-- ABA360, a New Jersey-based ABA therapy provider, is increasing awareness of parent-friendly resources designed to help Medicaid and NJ FamilyCare families better understand ABA therapy options after a child receives an autism diagnosis.

For many families, the period after an autism spectrum disorder diagnosis can feel overwhelming. Parents may have questions about what ABA therapy is, whether Medicaid may cover services, what documentation is needed, and how to begin the intake and authorization process. ABA360's goal is to make those next steps clearer for New Jersey families seeking support for children with autism.

“

We help families understand what ABA therapy involves, what Medicaid families may need for intake, and how individualized support can be structured around each child's needs.”

Fernande Deguenon, Clinical Director, ABA360

ABA360 provides individualized Applied Behavior Analysis therapy for children with autism across New Jersey, with services focused on skill-building, family collaboration, and BCBA-supervised treatment planning. The organization works with Medicaid and NJ FamilyCare families and helps parents understand eligibility requirements, including the need for a confirmed autism diagnosis before ABA therapy services can begin.

“At ABA360, clinical excellence is at the heart of everything we do,” said Fernande Deguenon, Clinical Director at ABA360. “We take a personalized, client-centered approach that respects the unique needs of every child and family. Through open collaboration with families and multidisciplinary providers, we strive to support meaningful progress and positive outcomes.”

ABA therapy is commonly used to support children with autism in areas such as communication, daily living skills, emotional regulation, social interaction, independence, and behavior-related goals. At ABA360, treatment planning is individualized and supervised by Board Certified Behavior Analysts, with parent collaboration included as an important part of the care process.

The organization's online resources and intake-focused guidance are intended to help parents answer practical questions such as:

What is ABA therapy?

Does Medicaid cover ABA therapy in New Jersey?

Does my child need an autism diagnosis before ABA therapy can begin?

What happens during the ABA therapy intake process?

How can families prepare for in-home, school-based, or community-based ABA support when appropriate?

ABA360's parent-facing information is designed to be clear, supportive, and easy to understand. The organization avoids one-size-fits-all claims and encourages families to speak with the intake team about their child's diagnosis, insurance coverage, service area, and next steps.

As demand for ABA therapy information continues to grow, ABA360 is focused on helping New Jersey families find accurate, practical guidance without unnecessary confusion. The company's digital resources are part of a broader effort to strengthen access to reliable information for parents, caregivers, and referral partners seeking Medicaid-covered ABA therapy options in New Jersey.
