She has the operational discipline and leadership experience to take Caliber into its next phase of growth, and I couldn't be more confident in her ability to lead."

In her new role, Catherine will oversee daily operations, financial strategy, and organizational infrastructure for Caliber. Tab will focus on revenue generation, strategic partnerships, and business development as President and Chief Revenue Officer.

"I'm honored to step into this role," said Catherine Pierce, Chief Executive Officer of Caliber Security Partners. "Caliber has built a reputation for rigorous, relationship-driven security work, and I'm committed to building on that foundation as we grow."

About Caliber Security Partners

Caliber Security Partners is a cybersecurity testing and penetration testing firm built on a simple principle: relationships come first. Caliber collects friends before it collects clients, and that approach, in place since day one, is why the firms that find Caliber tend to stay. The company's philosophy is that security done right is not about the most expensive option or the most aggressive one. It's about the right scope, the right team, and findings leadership can actually act on, not too much, not too little, done correctly. Caliber is a relationship firm with an enterprise track record, and clients work with the same team from the initial scoping call through the final report.
