

SPOZZ Brings Artist Subscriptions Directly Into Music Streaming

ZURICH, SWITZERLAND, September 1, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- SPOZZ is expanding its Direct-to-Fan Music App with artist subscriptions for exclusive content, bringing music streaming and recurring fan support together in one experience.

Artists can now offer paid subscriptions directly alongside their music. Subscribers can get access to exclusive songs, videos, behind-the-scenes content, live sessions and other premium experiences created specifically for their supporters.

Unlike traditional streaming platforms, SPOZZ is designed around a direct relationship between artists and fans. Fans can discover an artist, stream their music and then subscribe for deeper access without leaving SPOZZ for a separate creator platform.

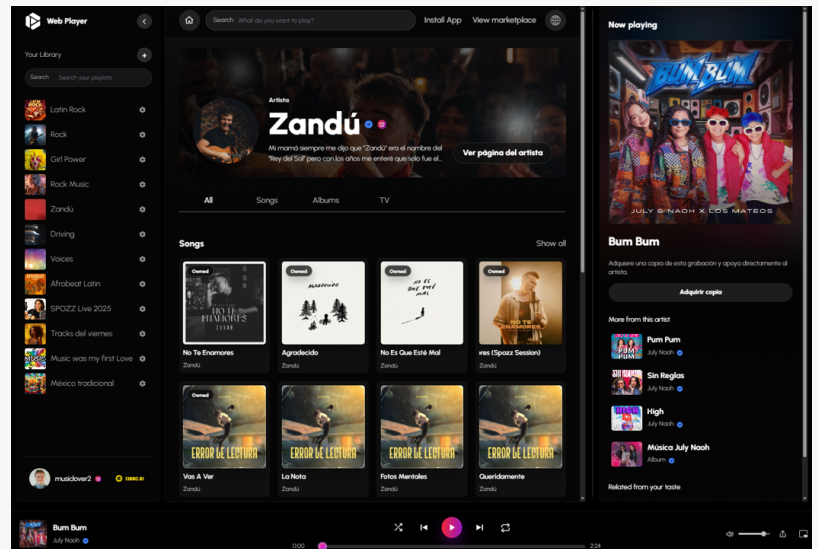

The new feature effectively brings capabilities familiar from platforms such as Patreon and OnlyFans into a music-first Direct-to-Fan environment, where the artist, their music and their community remain at the center.

Streaming + Subscriptions + Direct Fan Access

The subscription layer builds on SPOZZ's existing artist-focused streaming model, which pays

Music Streaming meets Exclusive Content Subscriptions

SPOZZ offers a Music Streaming, Song Sales and Sharing App for iOS, Android and Web creators significantly more per stream than conventional streaming services.

With subscriptions added, artists have another way to monetize their audience through recurring revenue, while fans can choose to support the artists they care about beyond simply streaming their music.

For artists, this means one ecosystem for:

- Music streaming
- Paid fan subscriptions
- Exclusive music and video
- Behind-the-scenes content
- Live sessions
- Direct access to their fan community

SPOZZ Music App: Streaming. Subscriptions. Direct fan access.
