

Cambridge Treats Strengthens Commitment to Quality and Food Safety with BRCGS Certification

TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA,
September 2, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/

-- Cambridge Treats Inc., a newly established pet treat manufacturer based in Cambridge, Ontario, has achieved certification to the BRCGS Global Standard Food Safety, reinforcing the company's commitment to product quality, food safety, operational excellence, and customer trust. Achieving this certification in less than one year of operations represents a significant milestone for the company's newly constructed manufacturing facility.

Recognized globally and benchmarked by the Global Food Safety Initiative (GFSI), the BRCGS Global Standard Food Safety provides a comprehensive framework for managing food safety, quality, integrity, and operational controls throughout the supply chain. Organizations certified to the standard demonstrate that they have implemented robust food safety management systems and effective operational processes to help ensure consistent product quality and consumer protection.

For Cambridge Treats, achieving BRCGS certification within its first year of operations validates the food safety and quality systems established as part of the company's new manufacturing facility. As the first Canadian facility within a global network of pet treat manufacturers, Cambridge Treats combines the agility of a start-up operation with more than 25 years of pet treat manufacturing expertise from across the group's international operations. The newly constructed 60,000-square-foot facility began operations in August 2025 and produces a wide range of premium ODM and OEM pet treats, including molded dental treats, vitamin chews, jerky treats, collagen chews, and collagen bacon.

"Achieving BRCGS certification in less than one year of operations is a remarkable accomplishment and reflects the dedication of our entire team to maintaining the highest standards of quality, safety, and operational excellence," said Charlie Tian, General Manager of Cambridge Treats. "As a newly commissioned facility, we set out from day one to build robust food safety and quality systems that meet globally recognized standards. This certification provides independent verification of that commitment and gives our customers confidence in the products we manufacture."

As demand grows for greater transparency and accountability across supply chains, certification to internationally recognized standards plays an increasingly significant role in building stakeholder confidence and supporting effective food safety risk management.

"Organizations that invest in recognized food safety management systems are often better positioned to strengthen customer confidence, manage risk, and support sustainable growth," said Emily Delisle, Managing Director, Business Assurance, Region North America, DNV.

"Cambridge Treats' achievement of BRCGS certification demonstrates its commitment to quality, operational discipline, and continual improvement throughout its manufacturing operations."

Achieving certification so early in the facility's development marks an important milestone for Cambridge Treats as it continues to expand production capabilities and support customers across North America and beyond.
