Most online astrology stops at the surface. With Moon Dasha, we wanted to show how much more can actually be calculated and understood from a Vedic birth chart.”

astrology platform focused on detailed astrological calculations and personalized reports, has officially launched at MoonDasha.com. The platform is designed to make advanced Jyotish calculations more accessible while giving both astrology enthusiasts and experienced practitioners significantly more information than a conventional online horoscope or birth chart.

Most consumer astrology tools provide a birth chart followed by a limited set of interpretations. Moon Dasha takes a calculation-first approach, bringing together a much broader collection of Vedic astrology data and presenting it in a structured, readable report.

Users can generate their Vedic birth chart from their date, time and place of birth and explore planetary positions, houses, signs, Nakshatras, Padas, planetary dignities and divisional charts. Moon Dasha also incorporates deeper methods of evaluating planetary strength, including calculations such as Shadbala, Ishta Phala, Kashta Phala and Vimsopaka Bala, alongside planetary periods and other chart-specific information used in Vedic astrology.

The objective is to make calculations that are normally scattered across specialist astrology software, separate calculators and manual analysis available together in a modern consumer-facing experience.

A major focus of Moon Dasha is relationships, love and marriage. Its Vedic Astrology Love Calculator goes beyond the simple name, birthday or zodiac-sign matching commonly found in online love calculators. Instead, it uses the birth details of both people to produce a detailed astrological compatibility assessment based on their individual charts and relationship indicators.

The resulting compatibility report is intended to help users understand not only an overall match, but the different astrological factors contributing to the relationship. This makes the Love Calculator useful for people exploring romantic compatibility as well as those interested in the traditional Vedic astrology approach to relationships and marriage.

Moon Dasha also provides a growing collection of free astrology tools for individual calculations, including Nakshatra, Ascendant, Sun Sign, Upapada Lagna, Arudha Lagna, Dashes and planetary-position calculators. Its live planetary positions tool provides current sidereal positions for the Ascendant and planets along with degrees, Nakshatras, Padas, planetary speed and retrograde status.

The platform is complemented by the Moon Dasha Blog, which publishes detailed guides covering planetary periods, transits, divisional charts, planetary placements, remedies and techniques used in Vedic astrology.

Moon Dasha was founded and developed by Kashish Kumawat, a software engineer and Vedic astrology practitioner based in Jaipur, India. Kumawat's work in astrology focuses particularly on relationships, love and marriage, with his study drawing primarily from Parashari and Jaimini astrology.

Moon Dasha is now available worldwide through its website at <https://moondasha.com>. The platform will continue expanding its calculation tools, reports and educational resources for users interested in exploring Vedic astrology in greater depth.
