The initiative reflects Lydian Memorial's commitment to serving families beyond the creation of a memorial. By providing an essential household food item, the company hopes to ease a small portion of the financial and practical responsibilities families may experience while preparing funeral services, repasts, family gatherings, and other periods of remembrance.

More Than a Memorial

Families often gather in significant numbers following the passing of a loved one. During these moments, providing meals for relatives, friends, and members of the community can become an added responsibility.

A 55-pound bag of Lydia Rice can help families prepare meals and care for those who come together to offer comfort and support.

“At Lydian Memorial, we understand that losing a loved one brings emotional pain as well as many unexpected responsibilities,” said Dr. Lydia Roxborough, Chief Executive Officer of Lydian Memorial. “We wanted to provide something meaningful beyond the memorial itself. This initiative allows us to help families preserve the legacy of someone they love while also offering practical support during a difficult season.”

Honoring Legacies and Supporting Families

Lydian Memorial specializes in personalized granite memorials, custom engraving, photographs, inscriptions, and other commemorative products created to preserve the stories and legacies of loved ones.

Through this initiative, qualifying customers will receive both a lasting tribute and a practical contribution to help support their household or family gathering.

The program brings together Lydian Memorial's compassionate memorial services, Grandfada Distribution's commitment to community service, and Lydia Rice as a dependable food staple for Jamaican households.

“Our mission is rooted in compassion, dignity, quality, and care,” Dr. Roxborough added. “Every memorial represents more than a name or photograph engraved in stone. It represents a life, a family, a story, and a legacy that deserves to be remembered.”
