

Axiothread expands its PLM offering with Siemens software, implementation and support services

CUMMING, GA, UNITED STATES,
September 7, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/
-- Axiothread, a product lifecycle management (PLM) consulting and technology services company, today announced its status as an authorized

Siemens Channel Partner, a relationship established earlier this year. This partnership enables Axiothread to sell and service Siemens Digital Industries Software solutions while providing customers with end-to-end PLM software implementation, integration and support.

As a Siemens Channel Partner, Axiothread can provide customers with Siemens software solutions, including Teamcenter and NX CAD, together with the technical expertise needed to implement, optimize and support their PLM environments.

"Becoming a Siemens Channel Partner is an important milestone for Axiothread and expands what we can deliver for our customers," said Srinivas Nandanavanam, CEO of Axiothread. "Manufacturers are under increasing pressure to innovate faster while managing greater product complexity and growing volumes of engineering data. By combining Siemens' industry-leading software with Axiothread's PLM expertise, we can help customers move from technology selection through implementation and ongoing support with one trusted partner."

Axiothread specializes in Siemens PLM environments, helping manufacturers implement and optimize Teamcenter, migrate product and engineering data from legacy platforms, integrate PLM with enterprise systems, manage upgrades and provide ongoing technical support.

The new relationship enables Axiothread to support customers throughout their PLM journey — from evaluating and licensing Siemens solutions to implementation, modernization and long-term optimization.

"This is about more than providing software," added Nandanavanam. "Successful PLM transformation requires the right technology, architecture and implementation expertise. Our relationship with Siemens allows us to bring those elements together and deliver greater value to our customers."
