the Top 20 of all Showcase Companies, chosen to present the business to Venture Atlanta's investor syndicate. This year's showcase companies span sectors including AI, enterprise software, fintech, healthcare, cybersecurity, climate technology, robotics, manufacturing, defense technology, and other emerging markets.

"Being selected for Venture Atlanta reinforces something we're seeing every day: contractors are ready for a fundamentally different generation of business technology," said Sarah Parks, Co-Founder and CEO of ContractorHUB. "The platforms that have dominated this industry were built before AI changed what software could do. We built ContractorHUB for what comes next, and we're excited to bring that vision to more investors, technology leaders and partners through Venture Atlanta."

As in previous years, Venture Atlanta 2026 is anticipated to be a sold-out event.

"Venture Atlanta is where promising companies get discovered and where the right connections can change what comes next," said Allyson Eman, CEO of Venture Atlanta. "This year's companies represent some of the Southeast's strongest and most ambitious founders and technologies. Being selected in such a competitive field is a significant achievement, and we're excited to give these companies a platform to connect with hundreds of investors and influential leaders who can help turn visibility into capital, partnerships, and growth."

Each year, Venture Atlanta brings together hundreds of venture capital firms, corporate venture groups, private equity investors, and Fortune 500 innovation leaders seeking the next generation of high-growth technology companies. Venture Atlanta alumni include some of the Southeast's most successful technology companies, including Bark, CallRail, Car360, Florence Healthcare, ParkMobile, Salesloft, Kabbage, Bitcoin Depot, PrizePicks, Stax, SingleOps, Pindrop, and Terminus.
