

New Children's Book This Holiday Season Let's Imagination Take Flight

A New Children's Book by New York Times Bestselling Author Lauren Sánchez Bezos

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, September 8, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Join Flynn the fly on a magical journey with The Fly Who Flew to the North Pole, the latest book in the Flynn the fly series by New York Times bestselling author Lauren Sánchez Bezos, releasing in November—just in time for the holidays. This heartwarming adventure celebrates the power of thinking differently and learning in your own way, inspired by the author's own journey.

In this Arctic adventure, readers follow Flynn and her best friend, Rio the reindeer, on a journey to the fabled North Pole. Rio has just been chosen for Santa's navigator training—a lifelong dream—but there's one big problem: numbers and directions keep jumbling on the page, and his all-important test is tomorrow. Worried that he won't succeed, Rio turns to Flynn, who knows exactly how he feels. As only a best friend can, Flynn helps Rio discover that the way he sees the world may be his greatest strength.

The Fly Who Flew to the North Pole follows The Fly Who Flew to Space and The Fly Who Flew Under the Sea as part of Impact Reading, a national nonprofit program that gives students in underserved Pre-K–8 schools the opportunity to choose and own new books, helping them build personal home libraries while fostering lasting confidence, motivation, and joy as readers.

The Fly Who Flew to the North Pole invites young readers to celebrate their individuality, trust their own path, and discover the extraordinary possibilities that can come from thinking differently.
