The expansion brings Cahill's established service model, experienced technicians and broad range of home services closer to customers throughout the Kenosha area.

“Kenosha County has a mix of older homes, newer construction and everything in between, which means sewer and drain problems can vary significantly from one property to the next,” said Andy Visconi, Sewer & Drain Manager at Cahill. “Having a local team with the equipment and experience to properly inspect, clean and repair sewer systems means we can solve more problems correctly instead of relying on temporary fixes.”
