As the Strategic Development Advisor, Stadtler will lead the company's highest-priority strategic initiatives, helping align product innovation, merchant partnerships, operational execution, and long-term growth strategies. He will work closely with GyftHint's executive leadership team to accelerate commercialization efforts, establish strategic alliances, and ensure the successful execution of key business initiatives.

"John is an exceptional strategic leader who understands how to help organizations scale while maintaining operational excellence," said Ed Jette, Founder and Chief Executive Officer of GyftHint. "His experience advising some of the world's largest financial institutions and serving executive leadership teams gives him a unique perspective on governance, execution, and growth. As GyftHint continues to transform gifting into a powerful commerce channel, John's leadership will help us execute our strategic roadmap, deepen our partnerships, and build a world-class organization capable of delivering extraordinary value to merchants, consumers, and investors."

Throughout his distinguished career, Stadtler has built a reputation for helping organizations navigate complex business challenges, improve organizational performance, and execute transformational initiatives. His expertise spans strategic planning, enterprise risk management, board governance, regulatory oversight, and operational leadership, making him an ideal addition to GyftHint's expanding executive team.

"I am excited to join GyftHint during such an important stage of the company's growth," said John Stadtler. "The company has developed a truly differentiated platform that benefits consumers, merchants, and brands alike by making gifting more intentional, engaging, and connected. I look forward to working alongside Ed and the leadership team to execute strategic initiatives that accelerate growth, strengthen partnerships, and establish GyftHint as the market leader in gifting commerce."

GyftHint is redefining retail gifting through its intelligent, recipient-driven platform that transforms traditional wishlists into dynamic commerce experiences. By integrating directly with Shopify and other commerce platforms, GyftHint helps merchants expand their brand reach, acquire new customers through gifting occasions, improve advertising effectiveness, reduce returns, and generate incremental revenue through personalized gifting experiences. Stadtler's appointment represents another significant milestone as GyftHint continues assembling an accomplished leadership team with deep expertise across technology, data, finance, marketing, and strategic growth.

About GyftHint

GyftHint is transforming the way people discover, share, and purchase gifts. Through its intelligent gifting platform and merchant integrations, GyftHint empowers consumers to create dynamic wishlists while enabling retailers to extend their brand reach beyond their storefronts, attract new customers through gifting occasions, reduce returns, and generate incremental revenue. By connecting recipients, gift buyers, and merchants in a single commerce ecosystem, GyftHint is redefining the future of gifting.
