departing from two of the country's busiest cruise ports: Port Everglades and the Port of Miami.

The Atlantic hurricane season runs from June 1st, and officially ends on November 30th, 2026. An average hurricane season sees 14 named storms, 7 hurricanes, and up to 3 major hurricanes of category 3+, with sustained winds of 111mph or higher. With zero hurricanes as we passed Labor Day this week, this hurricane season is continuing to be a record low. For the cruise and tourism industry in South Florida, the hurricane season marks an unofficial "off-season" with fewer tourists and cruise passengers booking cruises due to higher temperatures and fears of broken travel plans, cancellations and re-routes due to hurricanes. With no hurricanes 2026 through Labor Day, tourist confidence is at a record high.
