Thank You Bouquet

Thank You Bouquet is a site specific bamboo installation composed of 180 handwoven floral elements, located in Daan Forest Park. Each modular blossom is crafted using traditional Taiwanese bamboo weaving techniques, combining high tensile bamboo strips that are processed, steamed, and handwoven into delicate floral forms. The work conveys the visual softness of flowers through the structural strength of bamboo, symbolizing unity and appreciation during the pandemic. The structures respond to shifts in light and wind, creating an environment that invites viewers to walk through and reflect in a tranquil atmosphere. A modular framework provides structural integrity while allowing transport and reassembly across diverse exhibition settings without compromising visual delicacy.

The recognition of Thank You Bouquet through the Gold A' Design Award may encourage further exploration of bamboo as a medium for public art and contemporary design. The honor offers motivation for continued experimentation that bridges traditional techniques with modern applications. It supports ongoing inquiry into how heritage craft can foster social healing and communal reflection within urban contexts. The achievement reinforces a commitment to sustainability, cultural relevance, and emotional impact in future projects.
