The business operated successfully for approximately 10 years, establishing a strong track record as a versatile producer of spirits and ready-to-drink products. Its production capabilities included Agave, Whiskey, Vodka, Gin, Rum, and a limited selection of ready-to-drink (RTD) beverages.

The company's operations, production capabilities, and spirits-industry experience made it an attractive acquisition target.
The buyer completed the acquisition as part of a strategic expansion into a different but complementary business line.

According to Jeff Bach, the transaction demonstrates the continued demand for well-established spirits manufacturing businesses with scalable production capabilities and potential.

"This was a unique opportunity to bring together two businesses with complementary strengths," said Bach. "The buyer recognized the strategic value of the company's production capabilities and industry experience and saw an opportunity to build upon that foundation."

Bach Business Brokers specializes in representing owners of businesses in the distillery, wine,brewery, beverage, distribution, and specialty manufacturing industries, helping business owners confidentially navigate preparing, marketing, negotiating, and closing a successful transaction.

The successful sale represents another completed transaction and reinforces the firm’s commitment to helping business owners maximize their companies' value when they are ready to transition to new ownership.
