

Beddora Introduces Cooling Bedding Bundle for Warm Sleepers Across North America

Beddora launches a cooling bedding bundle combining breathable sheets, a bamboo mattress protector and adjustable bamboo pillow for warm sleepers.

MISSISSAUGA, ONTARIO, CANADA, September 14, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- Beddora has introduced a Cooling Bedding Bundle built for people who sleep warm, available now at beddora.ca and shipping across Canada and the United States. The bundle combines the 4-Piece Cooling Sheet Set, the Bamboo Mattress Protector and the Bamboo Pillow, and is offered in Queen and King configurations.

The three products were selected because heat reaches a sleeper from more than one direction.

Our Cooling Sheet Set is designed to help warm sleepers stay comfortable with breathable, soft microfiber fabric that helps manage heat and moisture throughout the night.”

Salman Rehan, CEO

Sheets sit against the body, a mattress protector sits underneath it, and pillow fill holds warmth around the head and neck. Most people trying to fix a hot bed change only the top layer, then find the problem unchanged because the waterproof protector below them is blocking airflow at the same time.

The 4-Piece Cooling Sheet Set is made from 100 per cent brushed microfiber, double-brushed on both sides, with a breathable weave designed to let heat escape and move moisture away from the skin. The fitted sheet has 16-inch deep pockets and full-perimeter elastic, which runs the whole way around the edge rather than sitting at the corners only. It is available in Twin, Full/Double, Queen and King, and in nine colours: Navy Blue, Forged Iron, Harbor Gray, White, Gray, Light Gray, Light Beige, Light Pink and Orange.

The Bamboo Mattress Protector uses a 200 GSM surface of 80 per cent polyester and 20 per cent viscose from bamboo over a waterproof TPU backing. It is built to stay quiet under a sleeper rather than crinkling, fits mattresses up to 17 inches deep, and is available in Queen and King.

The Bamboo Pillow has a 300 thread count cover blended with viscose from bamboo, a shredded memory foam fill and an adjustable loft, and comes in Standard, Queen and King. Fill can be removed or added so the pillow height suits side, back or front sleepers.

"Someone who sleeps hot usually buys cooling sheets first, and half the time it makes no difference," said Salman Rehan, CEO of Beddora. "The reason is almost always the layer underneath. A waterproof protector is a plastic film across the whole mattress, and if the surface over it does not breathe, the sheets above it are working against a sealed bed. Fixing one layer and leaving the other two is why people conclude that cooling bedding does not work."

Overheating in bed is rarely a problem at the moment someone lies down. It builds over several hours as body heat and moisture collect in the layers closest to the skin, which is why heavier bedding can feel comfortable at first and uncomfortable later. Moisture is the second half of that, because fabric holding humidity against the skin feels warmer than its actual temperature.

A waterproof protector is normally bought to protect the mattress itself, and most mattress warranties depend on one being used. The trade-off has usually been breathability, because the barrier that stops liquid also stops air. Putting a bamboo-viscose surface over the TPU backing is intended to keep the protection without sealing the bed underneath the sleeper.

The All-in-One Bedding Set is aimed at customers who consistently run hot at night, couples who disagree on bedding weight, and households without central air conditioning, where the bed itself does more of the temperature work. It also suits guest rooms and rental properties, where bedding is used by people with different preferences and laundered more often than in a primary bedroom.

The bundle is offered in Queen and King because the Bamboo Mattress Protector is produced in those two sizes. Each product remains available individually in its own full size run for customers who need a different combination.

"The easy way to make a sheet feel cool in a store is to make it thin, and thin bedding gives that up after a dozen washes," said Rehan. "We would rather describe what a product is actually made of and let people judge it. Brushed microfiber, a bamboo-viscose surface, 200 GSM, a 16-inch pocket. Those are checkable. Comfort adjectives are not."
