The Healthspan Summit Announces Its Strongest Sponsor Lineup Yet for 2026

This Year's Partners Bring Regenerative Medicine, Compliant Health-Business Payments, Laser Therapy, Genomic Precision, and More to the Longevity Conversation

Register for the Healthspan Summit Today

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, September 16, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- The Healthspan Summit today announced the sponsors supporting this year's event. The group spans regenerative medicine and aesthetics, health-focused payments infrastructure, nutrigenomics, and concierge medicine. Each sponsor was selected for the evidence and clinical rigor they bring to a longevity space that is often long on claims and short on data.

"The people building healthspan seriously all end up in the same rooms eventually," Elias Arjan, Founder and Chief Community Officer said of this year's sponsor group. "What connects these companies is a shared commitment to evidence before marketing."

In its fourth year, the Healthspan Summit takes place October 2-3, 2026, in Los Angeles, spanning more than 40,000 square feet and bringing together a over 50 speakers and 50 curated exhibitors across five dedicated zones: the Horizon Stage for industry-defining conversations, the Nexus for masterminds, the Innovation Hall for evidence-based product discovery, the Vitality Zone for performance and recovery, and the BeautySpan Studio for regenerative & medical aesthetics.

For the physicians, clinic owners, and med spa leaders, the draw is a high level of curation. Exhibitors are vetted against standards that include evidence-based science, quality control, and clinical or economic utility, that cuts through unproven claims and give clinicians solutions that are credible and ready for use in their practices. The Nexus track adds tactical, operator-level education alongside the Summit's broader programming, giving practicing clinicians a working session.

Summus Medical Laser: Evidence-Based Class IV Laser Therapy

Summus Medical Laser sponsors the Horizon Stage, the Summit's main platform for industry-defining conversations, putting the company's evidence-based class 4 laser therapy right in front of the event's widest audience.

"The Summit gathers clinicians, innovators, and performance leaders serious about extending healthspan, exactly where laser therapy belongs," said Dr. Richard Albright, Founder & CEO of Summus Medical Laser. "As a company built on evidence-based light therapy, we wanted to be part of that conversation."

Regen Therapy: Regenerative Medicine Rooted in Clinical Collaboration

Regen Therapy sponsors the Innovation Hall, where the company will showcase its regenerative treatments and make its clinical team available to answer practitioner questions on-site. CEO Sanjiv Lal frames the sponsorship as a direct extension of where the company sees the field heading.

"At Regen Therapy, we believe the future of health will be defined by innovation that moves beyond simply treating disease and toward extending healthspan, improving human performance, and changing how we think about aging," said Lal. "We are proud to be a Summit sponsor because it brings together the scientists, physicians, entrepreneurs, and technologies pushing that future forward."

Routine Skin: Skincare Built on Peptide Research

Routine Skin, the regenerative skincare brand, joins the Healthspan Summit as a sponsor with roots in peptide science. According to Director of Channel Sales Ashley Hines, the brand's skincare line emerged directly from research into GHK-Cu, a copper peptide the company studied in its earlier work in the peptide space before ever formulating a product.

"We really believe in the community and ecosystem the Healthspan Summit is building," said Hines."It aligns so naturally with what we're doing at Routine. Education and transparency are huge for us, especially in regenerative aesthetics, and I love being part of a community that's bringing the right people together and helping move this space forward."

Luqra: Making Regulatory-Grade Payment Compliance a Health-Business Priority

Luqra sponsors the Nexus, where the company will lead a session on building a health business's payments strategy from the ground up rather than retrofitting one after the fact. Chief Revenue Officer Jordan Rodell points to a structural gap in how health businesses typically plan for growth.

"There is a growing need for health businesses to have their payments ecosystem as a forethought to their growth, as opposed to an afterthought," Rodell said, noting that payments companies sit at the intersection of card-brand regulation and federal and state compliance, a position that puts Luqra in a consulting role for health businesses navigating both.

SNiP Nutrigenomics: Supplementing with Genetic Precision

SNiP Nutrigenomics returns as an official Sponsor of the Healthspan Summit. Founder and CEO Kim Ressler describes the fit as close to inevitable, given the company's focus on the practitioners who make up the Summit's core audience.

"The Healthspan Summit brings together the exact community our company exists for: practitioners across medicine, aesthetics, and performance who refuse to settle for one-size-fits-all care," Ressler said.

ConciergeMD: Physician-Led, Personalized Care

ConciergeMD sponsors the Summit's VIP ticket tier, extending its model of physician-led, personalized care to VIP attendees through dedicated concierge touchpoints. Danielle Livshiz, Director of Partnerships & Events, said the company's involvement is grounded in a belief that clinical oversight is what separates a credible longevity product from an unproven one.

"We support the Healthspan Summit because it's where the practitioners and brands shaping longevity convene, and we want attendees to leave with a clearer sense of what physician-led, personalized care can add to their work," Livshiz said. "Evidence-based collaboration matters right now because the field is crowded with unproven claims, and pairing a product with real clinical oversight is what turns it into an outcome people can trust."

Tickets

In celebration of its strongest sponsor and exhibitor lineup yet, the Healthspan Summit has simplified ticketing and opened a limited Sponsor-Supported Access Window, making it easier for practitioners to attend the event where these partnerships come to life. Passes start at $179, with pricing increasing after September 22. Get tickets at www.hssummit.com/tickets
