Seamless One by Kris Lin Wins Silver in A' Kitchen Furniture Design Awards

Kris Lin International Design and Goldreif Earn Silver A' Design Award for a Seamless Stainless Steel Kitchen Island System

Seamless One

COMO, CO, ITALY, September 15, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The A' Design Award has announced Seamless One, a cabinet system developed by Kris Lin International Design in collaboration with Goldreif, as a Silver winner in the Kitchen Furniture, Equipment and Fixtures Design category. The A' Kitchen Furniture, Equipment and Fixtures Design Award is one of the highly respected and well-recognized accolades within the kitchen furniture and design fields, evaluating works through a rigorous and impartial process. This recognition acknowledges the technical refinement and considered functionality embodied in Seamless One. The distinction places the work among a notable group of designs reviewed against established criteria. For Kris Lin and the project team, the Silver A' Design Award marks a meaningful affirmation of their continued commitment to thoughtful design.

The recognition holds relevance beyond the studio, reflecting evolving expectations within the kitchen furniture industry. As contemporary lifestyles position the kitchen at the center of domestic life, Seamless One responds to a growing need for spaces that integrate cooking, communication, and daily activity. The design aligns with industry interest in reduced spatial fragmentation and continuous interfaces, which research associates with improved efficiency and interaction. For users, the system offers practical benefits including concealed storage, durable surfaces, and simplified maintenance. These qualities support manufacturers, specifiers, and households seeking multifunctional and adaptable living environments.

Seamless One centers on an island measuring 4500mm in length, 1500mm in width, and 900mm in height, formed from a 6mm solid stainless steel surface finished with Italian Fenix high-performance anti-fingerprint material. The monolithic top is constructed as a single sheet, achieving visual purity and precision at large scale, while diamond-cut edges enhance tactile quality. Washing, preparation, and cooking are integrated within one continuous plane, with handleless electric drawers and multi-scale storage fully concealed inside the structure. The low-reflective matte finish resists stains and reduces usage traces without altering the material essence, suiting high-frequency residential use. Together these elements present the kitchen as an organized and unified living interface.

The Silver A' Design Award recognition may inform future directions for Kris Lin International Design, encouraging continued exploration of seamless construction and integrated functional systems. The project demonstrated how industrial metal properties can be balanced with residential comfort through collaboration, fabrication precision, and structural control. This experience offers a foundation for further innovation in spatial and material integration. The acknowledgment serves as motivation for the studio team to maintain its focus on purposeful, quality-driven design.
