Big North Capital Inc. will provide strategic support to Willowstone Living Group and the facility, drawing on experience managing more than 80 residential, agricultural and commercial properties across Ontario, as well as experience with land development, asset management and complex transitions. For 325 Archibald Street South, Big North Capital will focus on strategic planning, stabilization and establishing priorities for the property's future.

Big North Capital and Willowstone Living Group are sister companies with complementary roles, bringing together strategic and operational expertise to support a smooth transition and build a stronger future for the property.

"We believe good property and asset management starts with understanding the people who live and work in the community," said John Alegrias, Director, Real Estate Development, Big North Capital. "Our first priority is to listen, understand how the property operates today and identify what is needed. That will help us make thoughtful decisions and build a stronger operation for the long term."

As the transition progresses, Willowstone Living Group will establish its operations and work collaboratively with residents, staff, local organizations, service providers and other community partners.

“Our approach is simple: people first, then the property,” said John Alegrias. “We want to listen to the people who live and work here, understand the community, and build strong local relationships. We’re focused on creating a well-run, stable and sustainable property that can be a positive part of the Thunder Bay community.”

The transition will take place over the coming weeks, with a focus on maintaining continuity for residential and commercial tenants while establishing a clear strategy for the property's future.
