EXETER, UNITED KINGDOM, September 17, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Founded in the UK in 2018, Joiin has grown into a profitable, cash-generative business trusted by thousands of organisations. The platform brings financial and non-financial data together from Xero, QuickBooks, Sage and other leading accounting platforms, giving finance teams a live view of performance across entities, currencies and systems.

The €1.5 million growth financing is being provided by Gilion, which provides flexible, non-dilutive growth capital to technology companies.

The new financing will give Joiin greater capacity to scale its commercial operations, enter new markets and capitalise on growing demand for smarter financial reporting and consolidation.

Joiin CEO and co-founder Lucien Wynn said:

“We’ve built Joiin into a profitable, cash-generative business, with a product and reputation we’re incredibly proud of. This investment gives us the firepower to accelerate our go-to-market, reach more finance teams globally and move faster to capture the opportunity ahead.”

Joiin has seen continued growth as finance teams look for an easier way to consolidate and report without replacing their underlying finance technology. As a true multi-ledger, multi-entity platform, Joiin gives organisations the flexibility to use different accounting platforms across entities, markets and territories, while bringing their financial and non-financial data together in one consistent view.

That growth has been supported by Joiin's expanding fintech ecosystem. Over the past year, the company has added new integrations including FreeAgent, MYOB, Zoho Books, Fortnox, and Stripe, alongside established integrations with Xero, QuickBooks, Intuit Enterprise Suite and Sage.

Alongside this, Joiin now provides forecasting, Microsoft Excel and BI connectivity, APIs and Joiin Intelligence, its AI-powered financial reporting capabilities. Built on Joiin's secure, trusted data layer, Joiin Intelligence enables AI to work with connected financial and non-financial data across entities and systems, supporting smarter reporting, consolidation and analysis.

Joiin has also continued to strengthen its partnerships across the accounting and fintech sector, extending its reach into new markets and giving finance teams more ways to connect their financial data.

Nikolaj Sørstrup Jørgensen, VP Origination at Gilion, said:

"Joiin has made itself part of how finance teams close the month, and it shows in the numbers. A genuinely diverse customer base, retention that stays stable year after year, and new cohorts landing like clockwork. That's the kind of predictability we want to back."

The investment marks the next stage of Joiin's growth, as the company invests in its product, partnerships and commercial capabilities to scale internationally.

Joiin's growth has earned recognition across the fintech and accounting industry, with G2 Leader status for four consecutive reports, Platinum Partner status with Intuit, and recognition as a Xero Global App Awards 2026 People's Choice finalist.
