One Platform for Consumers and Businesses

LuggageToShip.com is expanding awareness of the platform beyond travel by addressing everyday delivery requirements across multiple customer groups.

Families and individuals can send holiday gifts, clothing, packaged belongings and care packages to relatives, second homes or other destinations without managing several disconnected carrier systems.

Students and parents can arrange delivery of luggage, books, boxes and dorm-room belongings for college moves, semester breaks, internships and study-abroad programs.

Travelers can send eligible luggage ahead to hotels, resorts, vacation residences, family destinations and cruise-departure cities, reducing the number of bags they carry through airports.

Winter-sports customers can arrange ski and snowboard shipping before traveling to mountain destinations. Eligible equipment may include skis, snowboards, boots, poles and packaged winter gear.

Golfers and athletes can book delivery for golf clubs and other eligible sports equipment before vacations, tournaments, training programs or competitions.

Businesses can coordinate delivery of packaged samples, displays, supplies, documents and eligible equipment for customers, employees, conferences, trade shows and temporary work locations.

Remote workers and relocating employees can send boxes, technology accessories and personal belongings between permanent homes, temporary residences and corporate locations.

This broad range of applications makes LuggageToShip.com relevant to family life, education, recreation, business operations and relocation—not only vacation travel.

Ready for Black Friday and Holiday Demand

The platform expansion comes as customers prepare for Black Friday, Cyber Monday, Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year travel and winter ski season.

Consumers can use LuggageToShip.com to send gifts across states, move seasonal belongings, arrange box delivery to family members or send luggage before holiday travel. Businesses can book delivery for customer gifts, employee packages, product samples, event materials and year-end supplies.

Customers with time-sensitive domestic or international shipments are encouraged to book early. Advance planning allows additional time for pickup, carrier transit, customs documentation, inspections and final delivery during periods of elevated holiday demand.

“Holiday delivery should not require customers to manage multiple websites, payment processes and tracking systems,” the leadership team added. “LuggageToShip.com provides one convenient place to review available services, book delivery, pay securely, prepare documents and follow the shipment.”

LuggageToShip.com provides access to available delivery services across the United States and to international destinations through established carrier and logistics networks.

For eligible routes, international delivery may be available across more than 220 countries and territories.
