WASHINGTON, DC, UNITED STATES, September 22, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ambassador Dr. Jacqueline Mohair Receives 2026 “100 Women of Excellence” Honor on Capitol Hill

Educational leader, humanitarian and Influence Authority™ founder recognized during September 18 ceremony at the Dirksen Senate Office Building in Washington, DC

Ambassador Dr. Jacqueline Mohair was formally recognized as a 2026 “100 Women of Excellence” honoree during a September 18 ceremony at the Dirksen Senate Office Building on Capitol Hill.

The national recognition brought together accomplished women representing education, business, philanthropy, entrepreneurship, faith, media, public service and community leadership.

Presented by the 100 Women of Excellence Committee in partnership with the Honorable Erica Thomas Adeyemi, the program recognized women for their professional achievements, leadership, service and contributions to their communities.

Georgia State Representative Billy Mitchell was among those in attendance for the Capitol Hill program.

For Mohair, the occasion marked a significant milestone in a career devoted to education, humanitarian service, entrepreneurship and expanding access to resources for others.

“Receiving this recognition on Capitol Hill was an incredibly meaningful moment,” Mohair said. “I am grateful for the honor and mindful of the responsibility that comes with it. Every door that opens creates an opportunity to build another bridge for someone else.”

Known professionally as “The Bridge Builder,”Mohair has developed educational programs, nonprofit initiatives, leadership platforms and business resources serving students, women, entrepreneurs, nonprofit organizations and emerging leaders.

Her leadership philosophy, Build the Table™ encourages individuals to create opportunities rather than wait for access to spaces that already exist.

“Leadership is not simply about having a seat at a table,” Mohair said. “Sometimes our responsibility is to build the table, create the opportunity and make room for other people to rise with us.”

Expanding Access Through Technology

Mohair is the founder of Trinity Girls Network and the creator of Influence Authority™, a technology ecosystem designed to support entrepreneurs, nonprofit leaders, educators, authors, speakers and coaches.

business growth within one platform.

The technology represents an expansion of Mohair's work at the intersection of education, entrepreneurship and digital innovation.

"My vision has always been bigger than creating one program or one organization," Mohair said. "I want to create systems that give people with meaningful ideas access to the tools, education, visibility and resources they need to build something sustainable."

Her broader work includes publishing, media, nonprofit development, humanitarian initiatives and educational leadership.

Turning Recognition Into Continued Service

Mohair said the Washington experience reinforced a principle that has guided her career: recognition carries a responsibility to continue serving others.

That commitment is reflected in the message "Bridging Gaps and Changing Lives."

"I appreciate every recognition, but the important question is what we do after the ceremony," Mohair said. "For me, the answer is to keep building, serving and creating pathways that can continue benefiting people for generations."

Following the Capitol Hill ceremony, honorees and guests continued the 100 Women of Excellence celebration during Congressional Black Caucus Weekend in Washington, DC.

As Mohair enters the next chapter of her work, she says her focus is on building institutions, technology and opportunities capable of creating lasting impact.

“Success becomes more meaningful when what we build continues helping people beyond us,” Mohair said. “That is the legacy I want to leave: stronger institutions, greater access, more opportunities and people who understand that they have the ability to build something that matters.”
