

Save the Date: Longevity and Mortality Investor Conference Returns to London in May 2027

The LMI Conference returns to London on 24 May 2027, followed by the International Life Settlement Forum on 25 May, both hosted at EY.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, October 14, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Longevity and Mortality Investor (LMI) Conference will return to London on Monday, 24 May 2027, bringing together professionals from across the international longevity, mortality and life-linked investment markets.

The conference will take place at EY's offices at More London Place, London Bridge, providing a forum for investors, asset managers, insurers, advisers, academics and specialist service providers to explore the developments, challenges and opportunities shaping the sector.

“

The LMI Conference brings the industry together to exchange ideas, share expertise and explore the developments shaping the longevity and mortality markets.”

Chris Wells, Managing Editor

The 2027 LMI Conference will be followed on Tuesday, 25 May by the International Life Settlement Forum, creating two consecutive days of industry discussion, insight and networking.

The LMI Conference programme will feature expert presentations and panel discussions examining developments affecting longevity and mortality-linked investment markets, with speakers and participants drawn from across the industry.

Topics are expected to encompass investment trends, emerging opportunities, industry research and the evolving challenges facing participants in longevity, mortality and related markets.

Further details of the 2027 programme, speakers and registration arrangements will be announced over the coming months.

Chris Wells, Managing Editor of Longevity & Mortality Investor, said:

"The LMI Conference provides an important opportunity for participants from across the longevity and mortality markets to come together, exchange ideas and discuss the issues influencing the sector.

"We are delighted to be returning to London in 2027 and particularly pleased that the LMI Conference will be followed by the International Life Settlement Forum, providing attendees with two days of discussion and networking across closely connected markets."

Suggestions are now being welcomed for potential panel discussions and presentation topics for the 2027 conference, and sponsorship opportunities are also available.

Organisations and individuals interested in contributing to the programme, participating in discussions or exploring sponsorship opportunities are encouraged to make contact.

The full agenda and further information regarding registration will be published in due course.
