

M.V.B Films Productions Announces New Audiobook Release and Podcast Milestone

Filmmaker Meosha Bean releases 'Church Hurt: Season 2' digital audiobook as flagship podcast 'Creator to Creators' surpasses 400 episodes

CAROL STREAM, AL, UNITED STATES, September 21, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Independent media company M.V.B Films Productions today announced the formal release of Church Hurt: Season 2, a seven-part digital audiobook authored and narrated by director, actress, and creative producer Meosha Bean. The publication marks a significant expansion in the company's audio storytelling catalog and coincides with a major distribution milestone for its premier media platform, Creator to Creators with Meosha Bean, which has officially surpassed 400 published episodes across global broadcast networks.

Published as a digital audiobook in September 2026, Church Hurt: Season 2 is a documentary-style narrative series designed to explore complex social, spiritual, and psychological themes. The production examines the long-term impact of harmful experiences, toxic leadership structures, manipulation, and financial exploitation within religious communities. Across seven dedicated episodes, the series provides a structured examination of spiritual abuse and accountability, while offering perspective on the recovery and healing process for survivors.

You have to become the CEO of your own life. Stop waiting for someone to give you permission to become who you already know you are.”

"Storytelling carries a responsibility to address complex real-world topics that are often overlooked or difficult to discuss," said Meosha Bean, founder and chief executive officer of M.V.B Films Productions. "The objective behind Church Hurt: Season 2 is to provide a platform for survivor experiences, open honest dialogue around systemic issues, and highlight paths toward psychological recovery and personal accountability. Building independent media platforms allows creators to bring these critical narratives directly to the public without traditional editorial barriers."

Alongside the debut of Church Hurt: Season 2, M.V.B Films Productions continues to scale its broadcast operations through Creator to Creators with Meosha Bean. Originally launched to provide an in-depth look into the creative process, the show features long-form interviews with directors, screenwriters, actors, musicians, authors, and industry executives. Having passed the 400-episode milestone in late 2026, the program has established itself as an ongoing educational and conversational resource for creative professionals and audiences worldwide.

The podcast's extensive archive highlights notable industry figures and in-depth discussions regarding feature film production, performance, and independent distribution. Featured guests include award winning actress, writer, and director Jennifer Esposito, who appeared on the show to discuss her feature directorial debut Fresh Kills. The platform has also hosted prominent acting coach and filmmaker Michelle Danner, as well as golf media creator Bradford Wilson, known for his feature appearance on Netflix's documentary sports series Full Swing. Through these structured conversations, the program focuses on the practical mechanics, technical decisions, financial considerations, and creative challenges that define modern independent media production.

The expansion of M.V.B Films Productions' audio portfolio represents one branch of a broader multi-platform enterprise established over two decades of operation. Founded by Bean in 2003, M.V.B Films Productions was developed to centralize film production, talent development, media distribution, and broadcast projects under an independent framework. Over the course of more than 18 years in the entertainment industry, Bean has worked as a director, producer, lead actress, cinematographer, and post-production editor.

In addition to its audio productions, the company maintains an active portfolio of narrative feature films, short subjects, and documentary projects. M.V.B Films Productions is currently advancing development on We Were Golden, an upcoming narrative feature film project in collaboration with writer and musician Michael Mahoney. The company's existing filmography includes the feature thriller Meosha, currently available on major digital streaming platforms including Tubi and Apple TV, as well as independent narrative projects such as Project Paranoia, Hard Requitals, Miss Pepper, Delusions, and Anatomy of an Anti-Hero, which starred veteran actor Eric Roberts. Bean's work in the genre space was also highlighted in the documentary Horror Noire, which examined the history and contributions of Black creators in horror cinema.

M.V.B Films Productions' current media operations build upon several earlier interview and conversational platforms developed by the company. These include Women Talk with Meosha, an in-person interview series highlighting female leadership across various professional industries, and Tea Talks with Meosha and Irina, a broadcast interview platform that ran for five consecutive seasons. The experience gained from these legacy broadcasts directly informed the infrastructure and content strategy now driving Creator to Creators.

Beyond formal production releases, the company utilizes digital channels and online streaming networks to share technical breakdowns, behind-the-scenes production footage, and educational material regarding independent filmmaking. By maintaining direct ownership over its content and distribution channels, M.V.B Films Productions continues to demonstrate a sustainable model for independent creative enterprises operating outside the traditional studio system.

"Building a long-term career in media requires combining creative vision with technical knowledge and business infrastructure," Bean added. "Whether working behind the camera on a narrative film, authoring an audiobook, or hosting a podcast, the focus remains on creative ownership, persistence, and building platforms that resonate with global audiences."

Church Hurt: Season 2 is available now for purchase and streaming across major digital audiobook distribution networks. Creator to Creators with Meosha Bean releases new episodes regularly, accessible via Apple Podcasts, Spotify, YouTube, and official syndicate partners.
