

Mesothelioma Victims Center Now Appeals a School or Hospital Maintenance Man with Mesothelioma or Lung Cancer to Call Them for Direct Access to The Nation's Top Lawyers for Much Better Compensation Results

WASHINGTON , DC, UNITED STATES,
September 29, 2026 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- The Mesothelioma Victims Center is encouraging families of school or hospital maintenance workers recently diagnosed with mesothelioma or asbestos-related lung cancer to call 866-714-6466 for direct access to the nation's most skilled lawyers for client compensation results. The organization advises families not to assume that a local car accident attorney or a law firm primarily focused on marketing is prepared to manage the complexities of an asbestos claim.

School and hospital maintenance workers may have encountered asbestos while working around boilers, plumbing pipes and pumps, insulation, electrical systems, ceiling tiles, and other building materials. Because these workers often handled repairs and maintenance throughout older facilities, they may have experienced repeated occupational asbestos exposure over many years. <https://MesotheliomaVictimsCenter.Com>

The Mesothelioma Victims Center says, "Compensation in asbestos-related lung cancer cases can potentially reach hundreds of thousands of dollars or more, depending on the individual circumstances. In some mesothelioma cases, compensation may exceed $1 million. Families can contact the organization at 866-714-6466 to discuss their situation and learn about potential law firm options."

The Mesothelioma Victims Center states:

"The mesothelioma and asbestos exposure lung cancer attorneys we recommend understand the products and materials that may have exposed maintenance workers to asbestos, including plumbing products, insulation, boilers, pipes, ceiling tiles, and plumbing pumps. This type of experience is vital when pursuing compensation for a maintenance worker diagnosed with an asbestos-related lung cancer.

Most people with asbestos exposure lung cancer never get compensated because they do not realize the $30 billion dollar asbestos trust funds were set up for them too."

Facilities Where Maintenance Workers May Have Been Exposed-According to the Mesothelioma Victims Center, maintenance workers and custodians may have encountered asbestos in many different types of facilities, including:

"Compensation in asbestos-related lung cancer cases might reach hundreds of thousands of dollars or more, depending on the individual circumstances as the Center can explain at 866-714-6466."

Occupations With Potential Asbestos Exposure

Occupational groups that have historically faced significant asbestos exposure include U.S. Navy veterans, power plant workers, shipyard workers, steel mill workers, oil refinery workers, factory workers, plumbers, electricians, welders, pipefitters, millwrights, miners, auto mechanics, machinists, pulp and paper mill workers, printers, firefighters, railroad workers, and construction workers.

In many cases, people diagnosed with mesothelioma were exposed to asbestos decades before their diagnosis, sometimes during the 1950s, 1960s, 1970s, or 1980s.

The CDC has identified several states with relatively high rates of mesothelioma, including Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, California, Texas, Florida, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Louisiana, Washington, and Oregon.

An Important Consideration for Families

The Mesothelioma Victims Center says many former school and hospital maintenance workers who experienced regular occupational asbestos exposure before 1983 may not realize that asbestos trust funds could be a potential source of compensation.

The organization encourages families to explore their options if a husband or father worked in school or hospital maintenance, experienced regular workplace asbestos exposure, and was diagnosed with lung cancer or mesothelioma years or even decades later. Families can contact the Mesothelioma Victims Center at 866-714-6466 to discuss their circumstances and the nation's top lawyers when it comes to client compensation results.
