MIAMI, FL, UNITED STATES, September 22, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Immigration attorney Terik Hashmi has announced plans to publish his collected articles and written advisements on business immigration at TerikHashmi.com. His past publications on visa and immigration matters for talented artists and athletes will appear on Artist-Attorney.com, providing a separate resource for readers in the arts, entertainment, and sports.

The two collections will bring together Hashmi's writing for distinct audiences, making it easier for readers to find material relevant to their professional goals and immigration questions.

TerikHashmi.com will focus on business immigration. The collection is intended for employers, entrepreneurs, investors, executives, and international professionals seeking perspective on immigration planning in a commercial setting. It will offer a place to explore Hashmi's written guidance on business expansion, international hiring, and professional opportunities in the United States.

Artist-Attorney.com will feature Hashmi's previously published work concerning talented artists and athletes. The collection is intended for performers, creative professionals, competitors, and the organizations and representatives supporting their careers. Bringing these publications together will give readers a dedicated starting point for exploring immigration issues associated with pursuing artistic and athletic opportunities in the United States.

The publication project draws on more than 30 years of practice devoted exclusively to U.S. immigration and nationality law. Hashmi has represented clients from more than 140 countries and advised multinational corporations, emerging-growth companies, investors, and international professionals. The collections will make his written work available to readers seeking background information before discussing their circumstances with counsel.

A recent example of Terik Hashmi's regular articles includes a discussion of long-term corporate visa planning. DHS's proposed additional $103,265 fee for cap-subject H-1B petitions could substantially increase international hiring costs, making broader corporate immigration planning essential. Alongside scrutiny of L-1 transfers and uncertainty surrounding student employment, the proposal gives eligible companies reason to consider E-1/E-2 treaty registrations and blanket L petitions. E programs can support qualifying executives, supervisors, and essential employees, subject to treaty nationality, ownership, trade, and investment requirements. Blanket L approval can streamline transfers within qualifying multinational groups, but employees must still meet individual eligibility standards. Companies should review their ownership, workforce, overseas operations, and anticipated assignments to identify viable alternatives. The fee remains proposed, and a federal court has temporarily blocked the new fixed-period F-1 admission rule.

Readers can visit TerikHashmi.com for the forthcoming business immigration collection and Artist-Attorney.com for the forthcoming collection of publications for artists and athletes.
