

Charlotte Movers Road Haugs Extend Long Distance Routes From Charlotte to Raleigh, Tampa and Orlando

Family-owned Road Haugs Moving & Storage widens its interstate lane coverage from Charlotte, NC, adding capacity for Raleigh, Tampa and Orlando relocations.

Moving & Storage, a family-owned history, has expanded its long distance route coverage out of the Charlotte metro, with added scheduling capacity on high-demand corridors to Raleigh, North Carolina, and to Tampa and Orlando in Florida.

The expansion responds to sustained outbound relocation volume from Mecklenburg County and the surrounding counties, where households and small businesses increasingly move between Charlotte and other fast-growing Southeast markets. Rather than treating interstate moves as one-off bookings, Road Haugs now runs these lanes as recurring, planned routes with assigned crews, dedicated equipment and defined delivery windows.

"Charlotte has become a two-way city. People move in for work, and just as many move out to Raleigh or down to Florida," said [Spokesperson Name], [Title] at Road Haugs Moving & Storage. "Running these as scheduled routes instead of ad hoc trips means our customers get firmer delivery windows, the same crew from load to unload, and a price they can plan around."

Routes now covered from Charlotte

The expanded long distance program covers in-state corridors including Charlotte to Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, Winston-Salem and Fayetteville, and out-of-state corridors including Charlotte to Tampa, Orlando, St. Petersburg and Jacksonville in Florida, and Virginia Beach, Virginia. Each route is managed with tracking updates and a single point of contact through the length of the move.

Every long distance move is handled under the company's active FMCSA operating authority, USDOT 2535952, and Road Haugs operates as an agent for National Van Lines, giving customers access to a national carrier network while keeping day-to-day coordination with a local team.

Built on local moving operations

The route expansion sits on top of the company's core work as local movers in Charlotte. Road Haugs serves all Charlotte ZIP codes and 13 surrounding communities, including Ballantyne, Huntersville, Matthews, Mooresville, Concord, Gastonia, Indian Trail, Monroe, Harrisburg, Kannapolis, Pineville, Waxhaw and Weddington. The company's crews work regularly in Uptown, South End, Dilworth, Plaza Midwood, SouthPark and Myers Park, which the company says is a practical advantage on origin-day logistics such as elevator reservations, narrow street access and high-rise loading.

Alongside residential moving, the company runs commercial moving, senior moving and downsizing support, apartment and high-rise moving, packing and packing supplies, furniture moving, storage and warehousing, last mile delivery, and specialty divisions for piano moving, hot tub moving, safes and hoisting and rigging work.

Credentials and customer feedback

Road Haugs Moving & Storage holds Better Business Bureau accreditation dating to 2015 and is a member of the North Carolina Movers Association. The company currently carries a 4.9 out of 5 rating across 853 Google reviews, with customers citing on-time arrival, careful handling of fragile and high-value items, and crews that reassemble furniture at destination.

Pricing on long distance work follows the same approach the company applies locally: a written estimate with an itemized cost breakdown, no hidden fees, and a confirmed scope before move day. Customers moving out of state can request an in-home or virtual survey to size the shipment accurately before a quote is issued.
