TOMS RIVER, NJ, UNITED STATES,
September 23, 2026 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- New Jersey bankruptcy law firm Straffi & Straffi, Attorneys at Law, is seeking to speak with individuals, businesses, vendors, contractors, service providers, players, and employees who believe LIV Golf LLC owes them money following the league's Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing in New Jersey.

Straffi & Straffi Owner, Daniel Straffi, Jr.

LIV Golf filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of New Jersey on September 8, 2026. The filing reports estimated assets of $100 million to $500 million and estimated liabilities of $500 million to $1 billion. Bankruptcy documents list several high-profile golfers among the creditors, including Jon Rahm, Bryson DeChambeau, and Cameron Smith.

When a billion-dollar sports league files for bankruptcy, it's often the vendors, event staff, and local contractors left out-of-pocket. Our priority is to protect these businesses in federal court.”

Daniel Straffi, Jr.

While major creditors receive significant attention, the bankruptcy affects a broader group providing goods and services such as marketing, media, hospitality, transportation, and technology to LIV Golf.

LIV Golf LLC Creditors Impacted

Potential creditors of the LIV Golf bankruptcy case include:

- Golfers and agents

- Vendors, suppliers, contractors, and consultants
- Event, hospitality, and venue operators
- Marketing, media, and technology providers
- Transportation, logistics, and security companies
- Employees, former employees, and businesses with unpaid invoices or contractual claims

Creditors should preserve contracts, invoices, purchase orders, correspondence, payment records, and documentation supporting amounts owed.
