SAN DIEGO, CA, UNITED STATES, September 24, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Rosie Network (TRN) is proud to announce a new partnership with Navy Federal Credit Union, bringing together two organizations committed to supporting military members, veterans, their families, and the communities where they live and serve.

Navy Federal and TRN will work together in collaboration to advance financial education and create meaningful impact for the military community and their families.

As part of this partnership, Navy Federal will provide a grant to support TRN's Service2CEO program, which is an entrepreneurial program for military connected entrepreneurs. The program provides training, mentorship and resources to help veterans, military spouses and transitioning service members launch, grow, and scale their businesses successfully. Navy Federal will help facilitate Money Matters, the module that focuses on financial education and guidance to participants.

"Veterans and military spouses already possess many of the qualities that make great entrepreneurs — which is resilience, adaptability, leadership, and a commitment to serving others, so through our partnership with The Rosie Network, we're helping turn those strengths into thriving businesses," said Will Scott, Vice President of Navy Federal's Business Solutions. "We see this as an investment not only in individual entrepreneurs, but in the communities, jobs, and economic opportunities they will create for years to come."

The partnership aligns with TRN's mission to build stronger military families and reflects Navy Federal's commitment to helping build strong financial foundations and resilient communities through strategic partnerships and community impact investments.
