JACKSONVILLE, FL, UNITED STATES, September 29, 2026 / EINPresswire.com/ -- Campione Law, P.A. today celebrates its 10-year anniversary, marking a decade of growth from its Jacksonville roots into a multi-state law firm with expanding resources, capabilities and reach.

Founded in 2016 by attorney Chris Campione, the firm began with a straightforward principle: people facing serious injuries, disabilities and other life-changing circumstances deserve strong legal representation without losing direct access to the people fighting for them.

Today, Jacksonville remains Campione Law's headquarters, with offices throughout Florida and additional locations in Savannah, Georgia; Las Vegas, Nevada; and Newport Beach, California, while the firm's attorneys also practice in South Carolina, Alabama and Arizona.

For Campione, however, the significance of the anniversary isn't simply how much the firm has grown.

It's what that growth has made possible.

“Ten years ago, we set out to build a law firm where clients knew who was fighting for them and felt like their case actually mattered,” said Chris Campione, founder of Campione Law. “We've grown significantly since then, but that principle hasn't changed. Every investment we've made in our people, technology and resources has been about increasing what we're capable of doing for our clients."

TEN YEARS OF BUILDING

Campione Law's growth over the past decade has extended far beyond geography.

The firm has invested in attorneys and staff, technology, intake and client communication systems, operational infrastructure and specialized legal resources designed to strengthen its ability to represent clients facing serious and complex legal matters.

Those investments have allowed Campione Law to expand while preserving one of the principles on which the firm was built: clients should never feel like just another case number.

"Growth for the sake of being bigger was never the objective," Campione said. "The goal was to build more capability around the client. More resources. More knowledge. Better systems. More ways to help. If we're going to grow, it has to make us better at what we do for the people who trust us."

Today, the firm represents individuals and families in personal injury, workers' compensation, Social Security Disability, VA disability claims, property insurance claims, medical malpractice and other complex matters.

TEN YEARS WAS ONLY THE BEGINNING

Campione Law enters its second decade considerably different from the firm that opened its doors in Jacksonville in 2016.

The foundation, however, remains the same.

The firm intends to continue investing in its people, expanding its capabilities and developing specialized areas of representation designed to bring substantial resources and focused legal advocacy to the clients and families who need them.

And the next phase of that growth is already underway.

New initiatives representing the next chapter of Campione Law will be announced in the days ahead.

"I'm incredibly proud of what our team has built and grateful to every client who has trusted us over these first ten years," Campione said. "But I don't look at year ten as the finish line. Everything we've built over the last decade gives us the foundation to think bigger about what this firm can become and who we can help next. We're just getting started."

JACKSONVILLE FOUNDED. FLORIDA BUILT. SEVEN-STATE LICENSED. TEN YEARS WAS ONLY THE BEGINNING.

Ten years ago, Campione Law started in Jacksonville with a vision for a different kind of law firm.

A decade later, the footprint is larger. The resources are stronger. And the vision for what comes next is bigger than ever.
