

The Foundation for Impact on Literacy and Learning and Google Partner to Launch Meet LEA

Training Educators to Use AI Tools in the Classroom

HUNTINGTON, NY, UNITED STATES, September 30, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Foundation for Impact on Literacy and Learning (FILL), a U.S. national nonprofit focused on creating and delivering education resources to educators, has launched Meet LEA (Learn and Explore with AI) in partnership with Google. This free program teaches educators, school leaders, and youth program staff how to use generative AI tools built into Google Search. The mission is to learn how to use AI tools, integrate them into teaching, and educate students on how to use AI safely and responsibly. Participants will learn how to use AI to strengthen learning inside and outside of the classroom.

Meet LEA (Learn and Explore with AI) program is a comprehensive course that is offered in several participation formats. Details and registration at FILLMeetLEA.org

Some highlights include:

- Live 45-minute virtual interactive masterclass sessions led by FILL education consultants
- Educator Groups Train-the-Trainer sessions
- Self-paced training opportunities
- Student-focused AI literacy, safety, and responsibility

The training focuses on three outcomes: accelerating lesson planning, enriching learning through Google tools, and empowering curiosity-driven exploration. Since 2003, FILL has partnered with individuals, businesses, groups, and organizations to deliver innovative and instructional programs to inspire and enhance education.
