“This milestone represents both what we have built and what comes next,” said Burke, Founder and Managing Principal. “Our affiliation with Synergy allows us to preserve the responsive, experience-driven approach our clients value while adding complementary capabilities in AI, business intelligence, data, governance and transformation.”

The affiliation brings together Burke Consulting's financial and organizational experience with Synergy's foundations-first approach to technology and transformation. Synergy helps organizations strengthen the processes, data, governance, people and technology needed to turn AI, business intelligence and other transformation investments into measurable business value.

“Technology should enhance professional judgment, not replace it,” Burke said. “Together, we can help organizations strengthen their financial and operational foundations while making better use of data and emerging technology to support informed decision-making.”

Burke brings more than 35 years of experience in accounting, finance, financial leadership and consulting. After a 35-plus-year career as a CPA that included rising to Audit Partner and serving in CFO and Controller roles, she evolved her practice to focus on consulting and advisory services.

Her experience includes serving as Chief Financial Officer for the City of Stockton during its historic Chapter 9 bankruptcy. That experience continues to inform her work today, including current advisory roles involving organizations navigating Chapter 9 and significant financial and operational challenges.

As Burke Consulting enters its fourth year, the affiliation with Synergy expands the firms’ collective reach on the East and West Coasts while providing clients access to a broader combination of financial leadership, operational improvement, technology and transformation expertise.
