want to retain items that may have personal, sentimental, or financial value,” says Jeff Venice of The Jewelers Coin & Loan Co.

“All loans through The Jewelers Coin & Loan Co. are structured for an initial four-month term. At the end of that period, customers have the option to renew the loan for another four months by paying only the interest due. This renewal option can provide customers with additional time to repay the principal while allowing them to keep ownership of their collateral until they are ready to pay off the loan. People’s financial circumstances can change, and sometimes having additional time can make all the difference. Our goal is to provide customers with a straightforward way to access money while giving them flexibility and the opportunity to retain items that are important to them,” continues Venice.”

For more than 18 years, The Jewelers Coin & Loan Co. has built its business around credibility, honesty, and transparent transactions. The company serves customers throughout Boston and the South Shore and works with customers nationwide. Its experienced staff assists customers who are looking to buy, sell, or obtain loans on a broad range of valuable items.

“Transparency is an important part of the company’s approach. When customers bring in precious-metal items, testing is performed directly in front of the customer. The company utilizes an XRF X-ray scanner to help verify metals and determine karat content, providing customers with an additional level of confidence in the evaluation process,” says Venice. “The company authenticates items before buying or accepting them as collateral, including designer handbags and luxury goods. Its inventory and lending expertise extends to some of the world’s most recognized luxury brands. Customers can buy, sell, or obtain loans involving luxury watches from brands such as Rolex, Patek Philippe, Cartier, and Omega, as well as designer handbags from Prada, Louis Vuitton, Gucci, Hermès, and Goyard,” says Venice. “The Jewelers Coin & Loan Co. also specializes in high-end gold and silver jewelry, including pieces from respected names such as Tiffany & Co., Van Cleef and David Yurman.
