

Alpha Security Services Earns Fourth Consecutive Consumer Choice Award in Waterloo Region

WATERLOO, ONTARIO, CANADA, October 20, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Consumer Choice Award is proud to announce that Alpha Security Services has been named the 2027 Consumer Choice Award winner in the Security Guard Services category for Waterloo Region, marking the company's fourth consecutive year receiving the award.

Founded in 2020, Alpha Security Services has expanded well beyond traditional guard services. The Ontario security company now brings together trained personnel, live remote monitoring, CCTV installation and mobile surveillance solutions, giving clients the ability to build security coverage around the realities of their individual properties and operations.

Alpha has grown significantly since we started, but our goal has remained the same: make professional security easy to access and responsive to what each client actually needs.”

That flexibility is particularly important because security needs are rarely one-size-fits-all. A construction site may need surveillance where permanent power or internet access is limited, while a commercial property may require ongoing guards and overnight monitoring. An event may need personnel for a single day, while an unexpected incident can create an immediate need for qualified guards on short notice. Alpha has structured its operation to accommodate each of those situations without requiring clients to navigate multiple security providers.

“Receiving the Consumer Choice Award for a fourth consecutive year is incredibly meaningful to our team,” said Mohammed Uwais Shaikh, CEO and Co-Founder of Alpha Security Services. “Alpha has grown significantly since we started, but our goal has remained the same: make professional security easy to access and responsive to what each client actually needs. Whether that means deploying guards quickly, providing ongoing coverage or incorporating technology into a security plan, we want our clients to know they have one team they can rely on.”

Rapid mobilization has become an important part of that model. Alpha supports long-term assignments as well as temporary, emergency and short-notice requests, allowing organizations to establish security coverage quickly when circumstances change. The company serves clients across Ontario through five regional branches and works in environments ranging from universities, residential properties and commercial buildings to construction sites, truck yards, logistics facilities, stadiums, hospitals, long-term care facilities and data centres.

Alpha has also placed considerable emphasis on what happens after personnel arrive on site. Clients have access to a dedicated account manager who assists with scheduling, service adjustments, reporting and operational needs. Detailed incident reports, timestamped photographs and patrol documentation provide additional visibility into activity on site and create a clearer record of how security services are being delivered.

Technology has increasingly become another part of that accountability. Alpha provides live remote video monitoring and CCTV solutions that can complement physical guards or protect locations where continuous on-site personnel may not be necessary. For temporary or infrastructure-limited properties, mobile surveillance solutions can provide monitored coverage without depending on conventional power or an existing network connection.

The company's one-stop approach also extends to practical site requirements. When needed, Alpha can supply operational and visibility resources such as security signage, vehicle magnets, strobe lights and other supporting equipment, allowing security arrangements to be adapted to the environment rather than limited to a predetermined service package.

For Alpha, the company's fourth consecutive Consumer Choice Award comes at a point when its role has become much broader than supplying security personnel. In only a few years, it has developed an operation capable of bringing guards, technology, rapid deployment, account management and documented reporting together under one provider, giving organizations a simpler way to manage increasingly varied security requirements.
