

Liveops Announces 6,000 Remote Independent Contractor Opportunities for 2027 Tax Season

Nationwide sourcing initiative expands access to flexible, work-from-home earning opportunities ahead of peak tax season

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, UNITED STATES, October 20, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Liveops, a leader in flexible customer experience outsourcing solutions, today announced a nationwide sourcing initiative offering approximately 6,000 remote independent contractor opportunities ahead of the 2027 tax season.

The initiative will give people across the United States the opportunity to earn income from home while providing customer support for a leading tax software provider during one of the busiest customer service periods of the year.

“At Liveops, we believe people should have access to meaningful earning opportunities that can fit around their lives,” said Molly Moore, President and Chief Operating Officer at Liveops. “Tax season allows us to open the door to thousands of people across the country who want the flexibility to provide services from home and have greater control over when they earn. At the same time, we’re building a community of talented professionals who can make a real difference for customers during an important time of year.”

Expanding access to flexible earning opportunities

Liveops is accepting applications nationwide for its December 2026 sourcing cycle, giving prospective agents the opportunity to apply now and secure their spot for consideration ahead of the 2027 tax season. These remote independent contractor opportunities are ideal for people seeking supplemental income, greater schedule flexibility, or an opportunity that fits alongside other responsibilities.

Agents within the Liveops network are independent contractors who self-select the intervals when they want to provide services. This flexibility can make the opportunity particularly valuable for caregivers, military spouses, retirees, parents, and others balancing work with priorities outside of it.

The program also offers a relatively short path to certification. New agents can complete client-specific certification in approximately two weeks, including about 45 hours of eLearning and two required one-hour live sessions. Returning agents can complete an abbreviated one-week refresher consisting of approximately 15 hours of eLearning, with optional live sessions. This streamlined approach helps qualified agents prepare to begin providing services in a matter of weeks.

Because services are provided remotely, participants are not limited by proximity to a physical contact center. Instead, qualified individuals can pursue opportunities from eligible locations across the country.

Preparing thousands of agents for tax season

Those selected for the program will complete client-specific certification designed to prepare them to support customers of a leading tax software provider during the 2027 tax season.

Liveops has supported tax season programs for decades, creating recurring opportunities for independent contractors to put their customer service skills to work during one of the country's largest seasonal customer support periods.

The 2027 sourcing initiative builds on that experience while expanding access to flexible earning opportunities for thousands of people nationwide.

Flexibility that works around real life

The Liveops model is built around choice. Rather than working a traditional fixed schedule, agents within the network can select available service intervals that fit their schedules.

That can mean providing services around caregiving responsibilities, family schedules, retirement, education, or another source of income. For people seeking greater control over when and where they earn, the model provides an alternative to traditional location-based employment.
