My campaign for Congress may have ended, but my commitment to the well-being of Georgia families has not. As a healthcare provider, I see firsthand how access directly impacts quality of life.”

Dr. Heavenly Kimes

a luxury, and a family's ZIP code, income or environment should not determine its opportunity to live a healthy life. That message will take center stage on Saturday, October 24, 2026, when former Georgia congressional candidate, entrepreneur and cosmetic dentist Dr. Heavenly Kimes hosts the Health & Environmental Justice Summit, an initiative designed to connect Georgia families with healthcare resources while encouraging meaningful dialogue about the challenges affecting their health and well-being.

Presented through the Dr. Heavenly Healthcare Initiative, the summit will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Voices of Faith Church, 1290 Sigman Road NW, Conyers, GA 30012. The community-focused gathering will feature free health screenings, educational resources, giveaways and the Heaven Helpdesk, offering attendees an opportunity to engage with healthcare-related information and resources.

The summit will feature a group of professionals, including:

Dr. Damon Kimes, physician specializing in pain management and addiction medicine

Dr. Jackie Walters, OB-GYN and women's health advocate

From the Campaign Trail to Community Action

For Dr. Heavenly, the summit represents a continuation of the work she began during her campaign for Georgia's 13th Congressional District.

Throughout her congressional run, she met families facing difficult decisions about healthcare costs, insurance coverage, prescription medications and access to preventive services. Those conversations reinforced her commitment to addressing healthcare challenges beyond the election cycle.

Health & Environmental Justice Summit

Rather than stepping away from public service following her campaign, Dr. Heavenly has continued using her platform to convene healthcare professionals, facilitate public discussions and connect communities with resources.

Earlier this year, Dr. Heavenly and Dr. Damon Kimes hosted a healthcare roundtable bringing together medical providers, insurance professionals and community leaders to examine barriers to quality care. The upcoming summit expands that conversation by welcoming the public and pairing dialogue with direct community resources.

Healthcare, Affordability and Environmental Justice:

The summit arrives as Georgia continues to confront questions about healthcare access, affordability and the long-term sustainability of services for underserved communities.

Discussions will explore the intersection of healthcare and everyday living conditions, including the financial challenges families encounter when seeking medical treatment, the importance of preventive care, and the relationship between environmental conditions and community health.

Environmental justice will be a central part of the conversation, highlighting how factors such as air quality, neighborhood conditions, environmental exposure and access to healthy living environments can influence health outcomes.

"My campaign for Congress may have ended, but my commitment to the health and well-being of Georgia families has not. As a healthcare provider, I see firsthand how affordability, access to care, and the environments we live in directly impact our quality of life. We cannot continue having conversations about these challenges without working toward real solutions. This summit is about bringing medical professionals, community leaders, and families together to share resources, provide care, and empower people with information that can improve their lives. You don't need an elected title to make a difference, and I intend to keep doing this work because our communities deserve it."

The event will also encourage conversations about how healthcare providers, policymakers, community organizations and residents can work together to identify challenges and pursue practical solutions.

In addition to the discussions, attendees will have access to:

- *Free health screenings to encourage preventive care and greater awareness of personal health
- *Community resources connecting residents with information and available support
- *Heavenly Helpdesk a featured opportunity for healthcare-related engagement
- *Giveaways and community-centered activities
- *Conversations with medical professionals addressing healthcare access, affordability and environmental concerns

The summit is designed for individuals and families seeking health information, community resources and opportunities to participate in discussions about issues affecting their neighborhoods.
